HOW TO USE THE DIRECTORY.

EXPLANATION OF SYMBOLS, ABBREVIATIONS ETC

In the English, Welsh, Scotch and Irish Sections :

- t . indicates that a Breeder is a Member of a Milk Recording Society.
- indicates that the Breeder owned a Champion in this particular breed at one of the leading Shows during the past year.

TO TISE THE DIRECTORY

Every effort has been made to make the Directory a handy Book of Reference Symbols have been used to indicate the extent of a Breeder's Activities, and to avoid the duplication of names when the Lists are used for Mailing Purposes Thus, the letters in italics after a Breeder's name indicate:

(c) name also in Cattle Section	(h) name also	n Horse Section
(a) Sheep	(f)	Poultry
(n) P a	(d)	Dog

In the United States of America Lists (pages 685-731), these Symbols are used in conjunction with numbers, as each list in this Section is numbered: For example C I indicates that a Breeder's name appears in the American Hereford Cattle Breeders List, and so on-

In the English Welsh Scotch and Irish Sections :

- indicates that a Breeder is a Member of a Milk Recording Society.
- indicates that the Breeder owned a Champion in this particular breed at one of the leading Shows during the past year

"I have found CATALINE a capital drench. Just recently I had a cow slip her call 6 weeks before time, and a very badly swollen udder, giving only 2 quarts of milk a day, after using a few bottler of the medicine the udder became normal, cow brightened up, and is now glying 14 quarts a day although her season of 40 weeks does not end for 3 weeks."

For Udder troubles in Cows and Ewes, a few drenches of CATALINE will render the milk perfectly good, increasing the quantity and effecting a complete cure, although the udder may be swollen to twice its ordinary size, and the milk full of clots.

REMEMBER-

The first essential for success in treating your Cattle is to dreach with Cataline immediately a beast is wrong!

INTRODUCTION.

Live stock with acknowledged Pedicree is an invaluable international asset of continuously increasing importance. The art of the Live Stock man a ms at effecting improvement in breeding by creating animals which are able to yield higher returns for improved conditions. This art must rest on the fullest knowledge of the capacity of each individual animal on the farm, as only thereby is it possible to chiminate the chief danger in stock breeding—the element of uncertainty. An element of variability is always present through heredity, resulting from various causes this pupil blood distribution by the mating process.

The uncertainty and variability factors can in a measurable degree by chiminal A by $m_{\rm int}$ ρ with well proved sizes only such females as have a satisfactory record of any stry

Nowadays all over the world an immense amount of capital is invested in live at , \(\lambda \), \(\lambda \), \(\lambda \) is of this is entirely wasted through breeding perfectly useless or \(\lambda \) invested \(\lambda \) in \(\lambda

The important prepotency factor in the size is not sufficiently state on the inheritable qualities such as early maturity, etc., is often und-figured. If in live stock breeding is therefore, imperative, and legislation explicitly should be adopted in every country of the world for the good of the profit against national waste. Undoubtedly the day will come when utility at all the controlled and laws will be adopted to enforce the elimination of any band of only sizes with inherited pre-disposition to high yield—in wool, milk, but of speed, egg laying, etc.—and adaptability to new environments can be used.

All this makes for the necessity of knowing the family history of the brood of the Pedigree.

The Interchange of Blood in Livestock Breeding.

By COLONEL WENTWORTH Director Livestock Bureau Messrs Armour & Comp Chicago

Ever since mankind thought of livestock breed ing as an art one of two general plans for the im provement of animals has been followed. The original plan was what might be termed out breeding or out-crossing, and involved the bringing of outside blood and characteristics into native stocks by the importation and crossing in of animals approaching the type it was desired to develop. The second system was of more recent origin and is known as pure breeding but it involves the selection of a type and the choice of animals for breeding purposes which most nearly meet this type While it is all a question of degree, one system may be designated as cross breeding, the other as inbreeding, since one is based on the idea of the introduction of outside blood and the other is based on the idea of selection within related blood lines

Up to about 1750 the system of bringing in outside blood was in preponderance It is difficult to say just where it originated, but it is known that the Crusaders brought back Oriental horses to cross on their war horses in the hope of gaining the grace, agility, speed and quality that were characteristic of the eastern mounts Still later from about 1500 on, there was a demand both for cattle and sheep of Continental origin to cross with the native British stocks of each. The importance of Flemish animals in the development of the old Holderness cattle the Teeswaters, the primitive Ayrshires, the Longhorns, the Shorthorns and the Herefords is well known Furthermore the introduction of some Spanish sheep into the Lowland breeds is of historic record

About 150 years ago the popularity of the newer methods of pure breeding became widespread Instead of continued crossing the establishment of so called pure Blood lines and breeds was accepted as the conventional method of livestock improvement. Most breeders believe that selection for type not only unifies the characteristics sought but also stimulates further variations towards the ideal desired Research in genetics during the last quarter century has effectively disclosed the fallacy of this latter idea In fact, it has shown that in the normal processes of heredity improvements in any character, beyond certain limits can be secured only by crossing on to this character the hereditary factors responsible for further development From the standpoint of future evolution of breeding this is probably the most significant discovery geneticists have made, for breeders previously knew no limitations to the methods of selection for type, pure breeding inbreeding, etc.

Commercially we also seem to have reached certain limits beyond which the methods of pure breeding subject us to the law of diminishing returns in a serious way This is not necessarily a criticism of pure breeds, but instead measures the handicaps under which the system works A pure breed, as we ordinarily recognise it, is far from purity as the scientists, either geneticists or chemists, would regard it From their viewpoint, a pure breed would be one which would always transmit exactly the same characteristics in all of the germ cells it produces. Not only is the pure breed as recognised by the breeder, incapable of such a performance but it is seriously questionable whether, for practical purposes, the geneticists pure breed would be desirable In part, it is the degree of variation that exists in the various breeds that makes them adaptable to the climatic and environmental conditions which they have to meet when they are spread commercially over the world One of the interesting discoveries in the breeding of maize and certain other species of cultivated plants is that highly in bred strains which have a minimum degree of variability prove most desirable for cross breeding to other strains in the production of large crops While neither pure strain may prove valuable commercially, and may each give yields amounting to twenty bushels or less to the acre, the crossing of two such strains may bring about yields from four to six times as great. The favourable results are credited either to the supplementing of the characteristics possessed by one inbred strain by those of the other inbred strain, or else to what has for many years been recognised as a stimulus arising from cross breeding The geneticist has applied the name, heterosis, to this latter phenomenon. There are two schools of thought which ardently advocate each of these views. The concept of 'Hybrid vigor' has been familiar for years but apparently the further the problem is investigated, the less foundation there seems to be for a belief in a stimulus due to the physiological fact of crossing, and the greater the opinion is strengthened that the characteristics of one parent, in a mating of unrelated types, supplements the characteristics of the other Where controlled experiments have been carried on, the latter alternative seems most suitable for explaining the facts, and is in all ways preferable as a working hypothesis

One of the interesting phenomena in connection with the study of crossing dissimilar animals has been that the benefits derived are related almost directly

In times of Agricultural depression there is a natural tendency on the part of farmers to practise economy. They must, though, distinguish between true and false economy. The falsest possible economy is to sow cheap and poor seed.

In the production of any farm crop, the item which costs least is the seed. The difference in cost per acre, between pedigree and ordinary seed, may be only a few shillings, while the difference in value of the resultant crops will invariably be several pounds in favour of the pedigree seeds.

The possibility of the Government subsidy is very remote, but a direct subsidy from the soil can be obtained by sowing Carters Tested Seeds.

the degree of purity in each of the two stocks crossed The principle is most easily illustrated in plants If two varieties of maize are crossed each of which has been only slightly inbred in order to purify its hereditary makeup there is little or no benefit from the mating On the other hand if each is decidedly pure the benefit is considerable. In swine the purer and more widely separated the two races are which are interbred the quicker growing and the more econo mical gaining of the progeny

One can examine the law of diminishing returns in pure breeding best by considering the results theoretically obtainable if one starts with a scrub stock and continues to breed it up generation after generation by the use of pure sires. The first cross of the pure bred bull for example on scrub cows brings about a very definite improvement. The second also increases the value materially but to no such degree as the first cross. As the breeding proceeds the new generations approach more and more nearly the qualities of the original purebred type Several of the British purebred societies have recognised this fact by permitting the registration of animals with a reason able matter of top crosses One eventually reaches a point however in which the cost of improvement becomes greater than the qualities gained

There is no question for example as to the im provement that a purebred beef animal such as a doddie bullock shows over a grade animal such as the medium to good market steer available for slaughter characteristic differences are definite and are well understood by every animal husbandry student Nevertheless production costs have increased to such a point that the refinements of the pure bred in con formation and finish are of no value to the consumers especially such refinements as often determine the final rating in the Show ring The present methods of breeding and especially of continued selection towards improved types require additional use of very expensive pure breds The increase in consumption of meat however requires lower prices whereby meat-eating will be stimulated and cheaper production methods whereby the breeder and feeder can still obtain a profit We have arrived at the apparent impasse of requiring better breeding at lower price levels whereas under practical conditions we can secure better breeding only through higher costs

Obviously two courses are open One is to develop our purebreds in the same manner as commercial herds but unless all the possibilities inherent in an animal are developed by good feed and care we can never know whether it will be worth while breeding from it we are to discover the relative possibilities of our breeding animals we must provide the means for dis tinguishing their differences For better meat pro duction we must actually realise these differences by

Recently there have been several interesting moves in the direction of producing younger animals and of increasing the rate of turnover. For example animals in the United States are being marketed so much theless the same general principles can be earlier and the proportion of breeding animals in the herds is so much greater that since 1907 the productivity per thousand animals has increased in cattle from 253 birth to 374 births annually. In sheep the increase has been from 332 to 422 in the course of the two decades while in hogs it has risen from 485 to 1,212 Since young animals are more cheaply produced than older animals this change is proving advantageous and it fits in very desirably with the growing demand on the part of the consumer for the smaller joints and cuts of meat Nevertheless there are some additional costs in the production of young animals especially with reference to off season production and extra shell ter which slightly handicaps this system

One of the most fruitful avenues of approach is through the use of cross breeding This idea is un doubtedly repugnant to most persons trained in the ideas of British husbandry but in Denmark and other countries producing high quality animals it has been quite definely adopted About one third of Danish bacon production depends on crossing two races of hogs the English Large White and the Danish Land race Danish Large White is much the same type as the British Large White but is thicker in muscling over the back and gammon and shows a broader turn of rib than the type winning in English Show yards The Landrace is still thicker and heavier built being stronger boned and more rugged throughout. The approved system of bacon production is the crossing of these two breeds preferably Large White boars to Landrace sows In each case purebreds are used the ordinary farmer buying pure breeding stock from Government approved breeders of each type of animal. At these so called Breeding Centres the standard of achieve ment is not Show yard winning or extreme production of any sort but rather the ability to beget litters that will make export bacon as cheaply as possible boars and sows recognised by the Government must first prove themselves Progenitors of commercially satisfactory pigs

Not only must the carcass type meet certain standards however but the efficiency with which the animal produces bacon must also be satisfactory When the testing system was started approximately four and a half pounds of feed were required for a pound of gain while at the present time all pigs tested average about three and a half pounds only This average is apparently possible because the system of cross breeding is used. Extensive tests at one of the leading swine testing stations— Elsesminde —show that the Landrace averaged 379 pounds of feed for one pound of gain and the Large White 3 69 pounds The cross between them however has averaged 136 per cent less or 3.23 pounds. At another station.

— Bregentved —the Large White averaged 3.55 pounds the Landrace 3 52 pounds and the cross bred 3.32 pounds The advantages of the cross bloods are thoroughly apparent

Not all breeders are ready to accept cross breed ing as a solution of a method of reducing costs. Never to a partial degree by the use of out-crossing and interchange of blood within pure breeds. In the United States we have felt very definitely the value of importing purebred sires and females in Shorthorns Aberdeen Angus, Jerseys, Guernseys Ayrishires, and various breeds of sheep and pigs. In draught horses especially have we encouraged this system and at different times throughout the history of our breeding have brought over top representatives of the Clydesdales, Shires, Percherons and Belgians. There is little question but that such fresh blood, mated to the strains already established in our country, has proved of extreme benefit

During the last few years this activity has been of pure-bred stocks precluded due to the fight against foot and mouth diseases, but at last the way seems open once more The run of American breeders are even more prejudiced against cross-breeding, and in favour of the best blood, than are the British breeders. Without a doubt, the export of the best of the British prize winners to the United States herds will provide a means of maintaining the high level of quality desired and at the same time furnish that complementing of characteristics that is proving so suitable in the case of cross breeding and that the same from cross breeding can be attained in the United States while the breeder still remains within the field of pure-bred stocks

The Milker that Matters

The curse of dairy farming is undoubtedly the milking, probably the only job on the farm which is carried out in exactly the same manner as in Noah's time. This drudgery of the most tiresome description is gradually giving way to mechanical milking everywhere.

The "HINMAN" is the simplest and best solution of the problem ever invented. It will help you by cutting expenses and eliminating trouble.

Osmaston Jenny the famous Cow that has given over 2,000 gallons for five successive years, has been milked throughout by the "Hinman." You cannot hurt the Cow.

Biological Research in America's Livestock Breeding.

By L | COLE Professor of Genetics University of Wisconsin Madison Wis USA

There are many lines of biological research which have a more or less direct relation to live stock breeding Naturally the first to come to mind is that dealing with heredity, involving the study of Pedigrees and methods of mating. This is doubtless the most important from the standpoint of live stock improvement. Fundamental to this however, are those researches relating to the ability of an animal to reproduce namely studies of the physiology of reproduction These latter, as will be seen later, lead directly to the influence of internal secretions (hormones) and to problems of animal nutrition

HEREDITY AND BREEDING -Previous to the re discovery of the Mendelian laws in 1900 there cannot be said truly to have been any biological research in heredity as relating to livestock Biologists were groping for a key to the door which would lead them into this field and, in the meantime with the microscore as an instrument, they were gaining a knowledge of the structure of cells and particularly of the repro ductive cells which was later to serve as a basis for the beredity studies which developed from breeding operations Mendelism proved to be the long sought key, it furnished a method of research which was quickly applied both in Europe and America Mendel s work had been with plants, but one of the first to appreciate its significance in animal heredity as well was the late Professor William Bateson at that time at Cambridge but later director of the John Innes Hor-ticultural Institute at Merton Park He and his associates particularly Professor R C Punnett, energetically undertook a brilliant series of experiments and observations which soon demonstrated that Mendel's laws hold equally as well for animals as for nlants

Investigators in America were not far behind in taking up the new lead among the first being Professor W E Castle of Harvard University and Professor Chas B Davenport, at that time at the University of Chicago but who soon after established and became for Experimental director of the station Evolution on Long Island Unfortunately for the direct study of heredity in livestock, the larger domesticated animals are unsuited for experiments because of their slow reproduction and the space and expense required for maintaining them. As a consequence our knowledge of heredity has been largely gained with smaller animals, the most important contributor of all being the little fruit fly Drosophila which in the hands of Professor T H Morgan and those working with him at Columbia University, has provided the framework for a new science of genetics Such definite knowledge as we have to-day of inheritance in the larger animals-cattle, horses, sheep, swine, has had to be though there have been and still are in progress several definite experiments dealing directly with them as well. The knowledge gained with the smaller forms serves to guide these experiments and help in the interpretation of the results. As might naturally be expected practically all of the work with the larger animals has been at the various State Agricultural Experiment Stations or in the Federal Department of Agriculture and the same is true in large part for the smaller animals as well

It would be impossible in a review of this length even to mention all the experiments with smaller animals which are gradually adding to our understanding of livestock genetics consequently they will be referred to only incidentally except where their contribution is direct. The work begun by Castle and Allen with guinea pigs and mice shortly after 1900 and continued by the former and his students on rats and rabbits as well has added much to our knowledge of the genetics of mammals Davenport's early genetic experiments, on the other hand were largely with poultry and sheep Further contributions to the genetics of the smaller mammals and poultry have been made by Sewall Wright (while with the U.S Department of Agriculture) R Pearl (at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station) C C Little (University of Mich gan) L C Dunn (Connecticut Agricultural College), J A Detlefsen (University of Pennsylvania) W A Lippincott (California) G H Goodale (Massachusetts), H L Ibsen (Kansas Agricultural College). at the University of Wisconsin, and numerous other These investigations revealed the manner of inheritance not only of many superficial characters, such as colour of hair or plumage but enough of other characters, such as growth, abnormalities and the like to show that while there were often very compli cated conditions the same general laws are of wide application

STUDIES OF INBREEDING -The first systematic attempt to apply modern biological methods to the questions of methods of mating was the analysis of inbreeding begun by Pearl while at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station Pearl pointed out that inbreeding is a relative term a matter of degree, and that as a system its effect is to reduce the actual number of ancestors of an individual below the greatest number it might possibly have back to any given generation For measuring this he devised what he called the coefficient of inbreeding which indicated the per cent reduction in the ancestry. He recognized also the importance of relationship of any two individuals mated. the degree of relationship depending on the number of common ancestors in their Pedigrees This might vary from none (no relationship) to all (brother-sister gained for the most part from herd book records, the mating) and was measured by the coefficient of relationexperience of breeders and by direct observation, ship Ellinger subsequently devised an elaborate formula for combining these two coefficients into a single term to express the total amount of inbreeding and relationship back to any given generation. Since that time Sewall Wright has developed a coefficient of inbreeding from somewhat different premises a measure of the amount of increase of relative homo avenuty of genetic factors that might be expected from any particular system of mating carried on for any given This measure has proved particularly useful for studying the methods employed by the great breeders who founded the important breeds it has been applied by Wright to the early history of Bates' Duchess Shorthorns The significant point is that after a first early intensive period the inbreeding was thereafter maintained at a nearly constant level of about 40 per cent Wright and McPhee have also studied the Shorthorn Breed in general and the British Dairy Shorthorns by the same method average inbreeding in these latter is considerably less than that mentioned by Bates Wright's analyses of the results of the long continued experiment on the close inbreeding of guinea pigs carried on in the Animal Husbandry Division of the U.S Department of Agriculture, furnish the most illuminating material we have regarding the genetic effects of this practice in animals. These results conformed closely to what would be expected on the theoretical basis for which, incidentally, we are largely indebted to the investigations of East Jones and others on plants They demonstrated clearly that while inbreeding will bring to light heredity defects that are in the stocks used it may also be employed as a means of purging the stocks of these defects and thereby creating a new stock better than the original It is not too much to say that these fundamental experiments are bound to play an important part in the formulating of any constructive, scientific system of livestock breeding STUDIES OF CATTLE -The earlier studies on cattle were naturally confined to what could be learned from herd books or other existing records, or directly from breeders experience and usually dealt with obvious characters such as colour and horns W J Spillman in 1906 elaborated the suggestion made in 1902 by Bateson that the polled condition in cattle is a Mendelian dominant to horned and he formulated rules of procedure for breeders who wished to free their cattle of horns Later experiments at the Iowa, Maine and Wisconsin Experiment Stations have tended in general to confirm this interpretation of horn inheritance Colour studies in this country have been directed largely towards the inheritance of roan as found in Shorthorns and in bluegrays (Lloyd Jones and Evaard The relation of black and red has also received considerable attention (Cole and Jones, Gowen, Campbell) Hadley, at Wisconsin has made a study of a definitely hereditary congenital epithelial defect in calves which always results in the death of the affected individual This has caused serious losses in some herds, but a knowledge of the simple facts of Mendelian inheritance points the way to get rid of the trouble

A few definite experiments have been undertaken to demonstrate the effects of "grading up" in cattle, notably at the Sni-A-Bar ranch in Kansas, at the Iowa Station (McCandlish), and by the US Department of Agriculture in Arkansas operative studies by the Department of Agriculture and the Texas Station on the effects and value of cross breeding Brahman and ordinary cattle are pertinent in this connection

MILLA PRODUCTION —Studies of the physiology and inheritance of milk production and attempts to apply them have naturally received a great deal of attention and have included investigations of divers kinds. The long disputed question as to whether the milk that may be obtained at any milking is already formed and in the udder appears to have been definitely answered in the affirmative by Gaines (Illinois) and Gowen (Rockfeller Institute). The latter has, furthermore, demonstrated an apparently direct relation between the amount of secretory tissue and the amount of milk produced. He states that roughly an extra pound of milk will be produced for each additional one fifth pound of secretory tissue in the udder

Numerous attempts have been made to find positive correlations between external characters and milk production Gowen's extensive statistical studies have shown that size of the animal bears a closer relation to milk production than any ether single character Large abdominal milk-veins tend to be correlated with high production but Graves demonstrated that if these are ligatured the posterior veins could carry the blood from the udder without appreciated.

ciably reducing the milk yield Before milk records could be used in inheritance studies it was necessary to find correction factors for certain variables that are characteristic of them Chief of these is the age of the cow at the time the record is Pearl showed that production is related logarithmically to age, it increases rapidly with each succeeding lactation after the first until the age of about seven years after which it decreases more gradually More detailed correction factors for particular breeds have been determined by Gowen and by Turner (Missouri) On the basis of such corrected records Gowen in particular has made extensive correlation studies of the production of daughters with their dams and other relationships. It has been recognized that one of the most important factors in raising average production is the selection of sires genetically capable of transmitting uniformly high production. This has led to attempts to devise methods of evaluating genetic ally the dairy sire (Gowen Turner) and to the practical finding of proven sires on the basis of the per formance of their tested daughters (Graves USDA)

Finally, attempts have been made to study the subertiance of milk production by direct experimental breeding tests that is the method of cross breeding which is commonly employed in genetic analysis. At the Wisconsin Experiment Station such an experiment was begun in 1912 and is still in progress. At the start Jerseys were chosen to cross with Aberdem-

Angus, but later Holstein Friesians were substituted for the Jerseys, as having greater differences, particularly in size and in milk production At the Maine station several breeds were used but the same general plan was followed of crossing low and high producing breeds so that the differences might be followed in subsequent generations. A third experimental herd commonly known as the Bowlker herd, was started from a cross of Guernsey and Holstein Friesian, with the idea of combining the high fat percentage of the former with the high production of the latter Theherd was subsequently taken over by the Illinois Experiment Station and has since been used for gaining further data on the inheritance of milk production. The results of these experiments so far, to state them briefly, are to show that in the case of both butter-fat per cent and production the crossbred is generally speaking, intermediate between the parents, and lead to the conclusion that both, as might naturally be expected, are determined by numerous (multiple) hereditary factors

A Jersey-Holstein cross has recently been started at the South Dakota Experiment Station but it has been running only two years and results are not yet

These experiments, particularly that at Wisconsin. are also slowly accumulating facts on the inheritance of growth, size, external characteristics, tendency to lay on fat, relation of fat to lean, slaughter percentage, and many other characters, which should help to an understanding of the inheritance of such characters and may come to play an important part in a more scientific livestock breeding program

An experiment being conducted at the Wisconsin station on the inheritance of resistance to infection with the infectious abortion organism (B abortus), while not dealing directly with cattle, will doubtless be capable of direct application to cattle

Horses -There have been no direct experiments in America on inheritance in horses either as to colour or other traits. Many facts regarding the inheritance of colour have been worked out from records by Sturtevant, Wentworth, Anderson, and others, but when added to the studies of workers in Europe and elsewhere they still leave a great deal to be learned Attempted studies of racing ability, gait, and other intangible characters, have yielded little definite genetic information

SHEEP AND GOATS -Early studies in the genetics of sheep were made by Davenport, who pointed out that the occasional appearance of black sheep in flocks of white ones was the outcropping of a recessive Mendelian character ordinarily obscured by dominant allelomorph Later he and Arkell (New Hampshire) made an extensive investigation of the inheritance of homs in sheep and devised what was for the time a rather elaborate hypothesis to account for Since then many practical experiments in sheep breeding have been carried on in a number of States, but until recently very little of a genetic nature Lush wool are being made particularly by the Animal Husbandry Division of the USDA and at the Wyoming Experiment Station Of late these studies are taking more of a genetic turn. Just now extensive genetic studies with sheep are being planned by Warwick at the Ohio Station Experiments looking to direct application have been conducted in crossbreed. ing for lamb production (by several stations), breeding of Karakuls (Texas South Dakota), and breeding a tailless sheep (South Dakota) which should have the vigour, hardiness and length of staple of the Siberian combined with the fineness of fleece and mutton qualities of our native breeds

The U.S Department of Agriculture has conducted a series of experiments which seem to indicate the value of the practice commonly known as flushing to increase the relative proportion of twin births

Except for incidental minor studies little genetic work has been done with goats They would appear to offer exceptional material for genetic experiments as well as for physiological studies

SWINE -The earliest genetic observations on colour inheritance on swine were made by a practical breeder in Illinois Mr Q I Simpson, and by Spillman Since that time a number of studies have appeared (Wright, McPhee, Wentworth and Lush, Warwick) dealing with colour and with some other characters, such as inheritance of mammae (Wentworth), the mule-foot " condition (Spillman), and the inheritance of hernias (Warwick) Type studies are in progress at the Indiana station which will doubtless have an important influence on breeding breeding experiments with swine are being attempted at Beltsville, Maryland (USDA) and at the Oallahoma station (Craft) At the Iowa station (Lindstrom) an experiment is under way on the inheritance of resistance to hog cholera

PHYSIOLOGICAL AND NUTRITION STUDIES -It would be impossible in a limited space to attempt to review all the physiological and nutrition studies having a relation to breeding Of particular note, however, are the results obtained by Hart and his associates (Wisconsin) on reproductive failure on restricted diets and of Evans (California) on vitamin E, which appears to be contained only in certain foods and is related directly to reproductive capacity. While not directly genetic, these have an important bearing on breeding. The same may be said of the studies of the reproductive cycle and related hormones in guinea pigs (Stockard and Papinicolaou Hisaw). mouse (Evans and associates) rat (Allen and Doisy) and in the sow (McKenzie) Growth studies such as

In addition to the foregoing, there are numerous investigations of a more strictly biological nature in progress in many laboratories over the country which are contributing to a fuller understanding of heredity and hence of breeding. These include studies of normal and abnormal development (experimental embryology). (Texas) has studied weight of fleece and studies in chromosome investigations (cytology), and in particular those of Brody and others at Missouri also play an

Except for incidental minor studies little genetic work has been done with goats. They would appear to offer exceptional material for genetic experiments as

SWINE -The earliest genetic observations on colour inheritance on swine were made by a practical breeder in Illinois, Mr Q I Simpson, and by Spillman Since that time a number of studies have appeared (Wright, McPhee Wentworth and Lush, Warwick) dealing with colour and with some other characters, such as inheritance of mammae (Wentworth) the mule-foot" condition (Spillman), and the inheritance of hermas (Warwick) are in progress at the Indiana station which will doubtless have an important influence on breeding breeding experiments with swine are being attempted at Beltsville, Maryland (USDA) and at the Oaklahoma station (Craft) At the Iowa station (Lindstrom) an experiment is under way on the inheritance of resistance to hog cholera

PHYSIOLOGICAL AND NUTRITION STUDIES—It would be impossible in a limited space to attempt to review all the physiological and nutrition studies having a relation to breeding Of particular note, however, are the results obtained by Hart and his associates (Wisconsin) on reproductive failure on restricted duets and of Evans (California) on vitamin E, which appears to be contained only in certain foods and is related directly to reproductive capacity. While not directly genetic, these have an important bearing on breeding. The same may be said of the studies of the reproductive cycle and related hormones in guinea pigs. (Stockard and Papinicalou, Hissaw), mouse (Evans and associates), rat (Allen and Dossy), and in the sow (McKenne). Growth studies, such as those of Brody and others at Missouri, also play an important part in the interroretation of erectic results.

In addition to the foregoing there are numerous interesting to the foregoing there are numerous progress in many laboratories over the country which are contributing to a fuller understanding of heredity and hence of breeding. These include studies of and abnormal development (experimental).

investigations (cytology), and in

studies of the physiology of sex such as those of F R Lillie and his associates at the Zoological Laboratory of the University of Chicago Their solution of the problem of the free martin is a good illustration of how biology is gradually solving some of the breeder's riddles

Finally there is a growing attempt to apply the findings of theoretical genetics to actual breeding operations Increasing experience has emphasized the complexity of the problems and has shown that in relatively few cases can the simple genetic laws be applied directly Chance and the probabilities of

certain combinations and results, must be taken into constant account. This has led to the necessity of mathematical consideration of the problems and the application of methods in the relatively new field of biometric methods. recent agricultural research has been the investigation of the mineral requirements of farm animals. It has I been clearly demonstrated to be incorrect to assume that an animal's ration constructed properly with regard to proteins carbohydrates and fats will be supplied adequately with the various mineral elements which are the primary factors of nutrition and which are essential to the proper assimilation and functioning of the organic constituents Especially is it incorrect to make this assumption under present-day conditions of intensive production of milk eggs and other animal produce. Of the ten chemical elements which the animal must derive mainly if not quite wholly from the ash portion of its food particular attention is directed to calcium (lime) phosphorus chlorine iodine and iron because foods and mixtures of foods are often deficient in these they have very important functions in the animal body and during certain periods of the animal's life-pregnancy lactation egg production growth-extraordinary demands are made on these elements to meet the needs of the special condition The majority of farmers supply common salt-a source of chlorine-to their animals and to day it has become customary to feed also some form of mineral supplement to the ration either mixed with the food or in lick form to provide calcium phosphorus iodine and iron This practice has been attended with excellent results serving to prevent the ill health and malnutration consequent upon improper dieting or the feeding to stock of rations deficient in one or more of the essential food elements

The relation of the element iodine to the nutrition of the animal has received considerable attention pags died during the past decade or so. Though only a trace color iodine is found in the animal body (chiefly in the thirty of island) it is a fundamental essential factor of poultry with bredging and fectuatity with the production of wool hair and the l ke with milk secretion and with the maintenance of health are of intense practical interest to the stock feeder. It has of iodine is incurred and the body supply must of a clearly demonstrated to be incorrect to assume increasity be continually renewed.

IODINE AND GROWTH -At the Rowett Research Institute Aberdeen Kelly showed that small amounts of jodine as potassium jodide added to the cereal rations of young growing pigs induced increased growth corresponding to an increased assimilation and retention of mitrogen phosphorus and calcium At the same Institute a group of twelve stall fed calves receiving potassium todide gained over the same period 32 cwts more than a comparable group receiving no todine Evvard and Culbertson at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station demonstrated that the feeding of jodine as potassium jodide to young growing pigs on rape pasture or in dry lot resulted in three separate trials in three different years in increasing the average daily gain approxi mately 10 per cent and in decreasing the amount of food required for 100 lb of gain 10 per cent. The pigs receiving the iodine made greater dimensional growth in height in length and in leg circumference than did pigs fed in exactly the same way but receiving no todide Confirmation of the influence of todine on growth has been obtained with sheep dogs rabbits and other classes of stock Ionive AND BREDING —So great is the demand for mineral matter during pregnancy that it is certain that deficiency of todine during this period will have ill effects on the young. These may be aborted still born or weakly and ill formed. In the Pemberton Valley of British Columbia where iodine deficiency is acute it was reported that practically all youngies died at birth or were aborted 90 per cent of calves born died within two or three days and the eggs of poultry though containing embryos failed to hatcout. Kalkus of the Washington Experimental Station investigating the occurrence of gostre (an iodine deficiency condition) in the district east of the Cascade Mountains reported that 75 to 90 per cent of colts born in these districts have gotte and 55 per cent of such colts are either still born or the after two or three days.

IODINE AND MILK SECRETION - Several Continental workers have reported increased yields and improvement of quality of milk from cows receiving jodine in their food. Little experimental work has been done in this connection in Great Britain but there is evidence that the supply to cows of an iodine-containing mineral supplement tends to raise the milk yield and to prevent infection with tuberculosis Reports from farmers have come in to the writer of better milk yields in cows, sows, and ewes as a result of iodine feeding

IODINE AND HEALTH —Tuberculosis, Johne's disease, and abortion to mention three of the worst plagues of the dairy farmer, may well result from a deficiency of one or more of the mineral elements upon which such heavy demands are made during lactation and it is important to bear in mind the influence of iodine upon the assimilation and retention of the elements calcium and phosphorus which play such an important part in the construction of milk Professor Weiser, at Budapest, demonstrated with breeding sows not only appreciably increased growth in the litters of iodine-fed sows but also their "almost perfect resistance to disease" losses from these litters being practically negligible as compared with heavy losses in the litters of sows receiving no iodine. The prevention of joint-ill in foals by feeding potassium iodide to the pregnant mare is of great interest to the breeder This treatment has been very successful in Canada and America and has given excellent results where tried in Great Britain In one case within the writer's knowledge the feeding of an iodised mineral mixture to a flock of 400 Southdown ewes resulted, for the first time in the experience of the shepherd, in complete freedom from joint ill in the lambs Experiments have demonstrated that potassium iodide or todine is a valuable preventive of coccidiosis in rabbits and of bacillary white diarrhoea in poultry

The treatthe animals But a careful study of the recent litera- | sources of todine for all classes of stock ture of the subject and of the uses of jodine in veterinary practice suggests strongly that many of the common epizootics might be prevented by the regular use of rodine in the food of the animal

Gottre and hairlessness of newly born animals are very prevalent in areas of marked iodine deficiency and the supply of jodine to the animals is an almost certain preventive, indeed, it has converted districts from impossible to profitable conditions of live stock production Further, though todine deficiency may not be sufficiently marked in some areas to result in such well defined pathological conditions, there is no doubt that it often occurs in sufficient degree to interfere with optimum growth and reproductive power Stunted growth, abortion, reduced prolificacy, and other troubles are sufficiently common to warrant the most careful consideration of the iodine factor

THE SUPPLY OF IDDING -It is not too much to say that rodine deficiency occurs practically the world over Vast areas of the earth's surface are known to be deficient in jodine, with effects which are only too apparent Even in countries like Great Britain there is evidence that large areas are deficient in this element and there is considerable variation in the iodine content of natural herbages in different districts The practice of cropping and grazing land without return of rodine to the soil has had its effect. Soil deficiency of the element is, of course, reflected in the crops and ultimately in the stock to which the crops are fed Little is as yet definitely known of the iodine content of crops and food materials, but it would seem from analyses that have been made that iodine is very often entirely lacking in cereals and particularly, of course in those grown in the notably deficient areas of America and elsewhere Traces are found rather more frequently in green vegetables, silage, and hay, but even in these cases the iodine-content is dependent on that of the soil The net result of a study of the subject leads to the conclusion that the natural supply of sodine to stock is a most unreliable factor. As an insurance against deficiency either iodine must be returned to the soil by means of jodine-containing fertilisers, such as Chilean nitrate of soda, or (and perhaps with greater certainty), iodine must be fed directly to the animal For this purpose potassium iodate constitutes, perhaps the most suitable source, though for poultry and calves tincture of jodine may be supplied in the drinking water or milk amounts required are small, being measured generally in terms of fractions of a grain per head daily lodised salt rodised concentrates and rodine containing ment confers a considerable degree of immunity on mineral licks are all obtainable and represent suitable

It has of iodine is incurred and the body supply must of a clearly demonstrated to be incorrect to assume incressity be continually renewed.

IODINE AND GROWTH -At the Rowett Research Institute Aberdeen Kelly showed that small amounts of rodine as potassium rodide added to the cereal rations of young growing pigs induced increased growth corresponding to an increased assimilation and retention of nitrogen phosphorus and calcium At the same Institute a group of twelve stall fed calves receiving potassium todide gained over the same period 31 cwts more than a comparable group receiving no icdine Evvard and Culbertson at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station demonstrated that the feeding of rodine as potassium rodide to young growing pigs on rape pasture or in dry lot resulted in three separate trials in three different years in increasing the average daily gain approxi mately 10 per cent and in decreasing the amount of food required for 100 lb of gain 10 per cent pigs receiving the iodine made greater dimensional growth in height in length and in leg circumference than did pigs fed in exactly the same way but receiving no todide Confirmation of the influence of todine on growth has been obtained with sheep dogs rabbits and other classes of stock

IODINE AND BREEDING -So great is the demand for mineral matter during pregnancy that it is certain that deficiency of rodine during this period will have ill effects on the young These may be aborted still born or weakly and ill formed In the Pemberton Valley of British Columbia where iodine deficiency is acute it was reported that practically all younpigs died at birth or were aborted 90 per cent of calves born died within two or three days and the eggs of poultry though containing embryos failed to hatch out Kalkus of the Washington Experimental Station investigating the occurrence of goitre (an iodine deficiency condition) in the district east of the Cascade Mountains reported that 75 to 90 per cent of colts born in these districts have goitre and 95 per cent of such colts are either still born or die after two or

IODINE AND THE SKIN—In the Prairie Province of Canada according to Tinline patchiness of wool regularly accompanies goine in sheep Iodine fed to the animals is an effective preventive Experiments with Menno lambs at the Oberholz Station of Leipzig University demonstrated beneficial results on the fleece from feeding potassium iodide. The writer has often observed a beautiful condition of the skin of pigs receiving potassium iodide and has received a number of reports of the excellent effects of iodine in unproving the fur of rabbits and the coats of doors

Ionine and Milk Secretion — Several Continental workers have reported increased yields and improvement of quality of milk from cows receiving iodine in their food Little experimental work has been done in this connection in Creat Britain but there is evidence that the supply to cows of an iodine containing mineral supplement tends to raise the milk yield and to present infection with tuberculosis Reports from farmers have come in to the writer of better milk yields in cows sows and ewes as a result of odine feeding

IODINE AND HEALTH—Tuberculosis Johne's disease and abortion to mention three of the worst plagues of the dairy farmer may well result from a deliciency of one or more of the mineral elements upon which such heavy demands are made during lactation and it is important to bear in mind the influence of jodine upon the assimilation and retention of the elements calcium and phosphorus which play such an important part in the construction of milk Professor Weiser at Budapest demonstrated with breeding sows not only appreciably increased growth in the litters of rodine fed sows but also their almost perfect resistance to disease losses from these litters being practically negligible as compared with heavy losses in the litters of sows receiving no iodine. The prevention of joint ill in foals by feeding potassium indide to the pregnant mare is of great interest to the breeder This treatment has been very successful in Canada and America and has given excellent results where tried in Great Britain In one case within the writer's knowledge the feeding of an iodised mineral mixture to a flock of 400 Southdown ewes resulted for the first time in the experience of the shepherd in complete freedom from joint ill in the lambs Experiments have demonstrated that potassium iodide or todine is a valuable preventive of coccidiosis in rabbits and of bacillary white diarrhoea in poultry

Walker and Taylor in India and Vendel in Distriction was demonstrated that foot and mouth disease can be cured in the febrile stage by intravenous injections of Lugols solution of iodine. The treat ment confers a considerable degree of immunity on the animals. But a careful study of the recent literature of the subject and of the uses of iodine in veterinary practice suggests strongly that many of the common epizootics might be presented by the regular use of sodine in the food of the animal

Rothwell (Dominion Animal Husbandman) writing in the Canadian Farmer's Advocate points out that we are not sufficiently familiar with the fact that, while only the most minute traces of iodine are required for proper animal functionings even partial interference with or diminution of this requirement or reserve may be reflected in most undesirable conditions quite apart from goitre

Gottre and harrlessness of newly born animals are very prevalent in areas of marked iodine deficiency and the supply of iodine to the animals is an almost certain preventive, indeed it has converted districts from impossible to profitable conditions of live stock production. Further though iodine deficiency may not be sufficiently marked in some areas to result in such well defined pathological conditions there is no doubt that it often occurs in sufficient degree to interfere with optimizing rowth and reproductive power.

Stunted growth abortion reduced prolificacy and other troubles are sufficiently common to warrant the most careful consideration of the jodine factor

THE SUPPLY OF IODINE -It is not too much to say that iodine deficiency occurs practically the world over Vast areas of the earth's surface are known to be deficient in jodine with effects which are only too apparent Even in countries like Great Britain there is evidence that large areas are deficient in this element and there is considerable variation in the iodine content of natural herbages in different districts The practice of cropping and grazing land without return of iodine to the soil has had its effect. Soil deficiency of the element is of course reflected in the crops and ultimately in the stock to which the crops are fed Little is as yet definitely known of the jodine content of crops and food materials but it would seem from analyses that have been made that iodine is very often entirely lacking in cereals and particularly of course in those grown in the notably deficient areas of America and elsewhere Traces are found rather more frequently in green vegetables silage and hav but even in these cases the iodine content is dependent on that of the soil The net result of a study of the subject leads to the conclusion that the natural supply of todine to stock is a most unreliable factor. As an insurance against deficiency either iodine must be returned to the soil by means of iodine-containing fertilisers such as Chilean nitrate of soda or (and perhaps with greater certainty) iodine must be fed directly to the animal For this purpose potassium iodate constitutes perhaps the most suitable source though for poultry and calves tincture of jodine may be supplied in the drinking water or milk amounts required are small being measured generally in terms of fractions of a grain per head daily lodised salt rodised concentrates and rodine containing mineral licks are all obtainable and represent suitable sources of rodine for all classes of stock

No stockfeeder can afford to be unaware of the unportance of this element in the nutrition and health of the animal or to neglect careful consideration of his own stock with a view to correcting possible deficiencies. The reports of research work carried out on this subject are worthy of the study of all breeders and feeders of live stock.

studies of the physiology of sex, such as those of F R Lillie and his associates at the Zoological Laboratory of the University of Chicago Their solution of the problem of the free martin is a good illustration of how biology is gradually solving some of the breeder's addless.

Finally, there is a growing attempt to apply the findings of theoretical genetics to actual breeding operations Increasing experience has emphasized the complexity of the problems and has shown that in relatively few cases can the simple genetic laws be applied directly Chance and the probabilities of certain combinations and results, must be taken into constant account. This has led to the necessity of mathematical consideration of the problems and the application of methods in the relatively new field of shometric methods. The breeder must not look for immediate results of a revolutionary nature, but it is safe to say that biological science, aided by mathematics, is gradually helping to transform livestock breeding of from a more or less haphazard art into a business which can be conducted with a high degree of confidence as to character and uniformity of attainment.

Iodine in Animal Nutrition.

By FRANK EWART CORRIE, B Sc , N D A , N D D

recent agricultural research has been the investigation of the mineral requirements of farm animals. It has been clearly demonstrated to be incorrect to assume that an animal's ration constructed properly with regard to proteins, carbohydrates and fats will be supplied adequately with the various mineral elements which are the primary factors of nutrition and which are essential to the proper assimilation and functioning of the organic constituents Especially is it incorrect to make this assumption under present-day conditions of intensive production of milk, eggs, and other animal produce. Of the ten chemical elements which the animal must derive mainly, if not quite wholly, from the ash portion of its food, particular attention is directed to calcium (lime), phosphorus chlorine iodine, and iron, because foods and mixtures of foods are often deficient in these, they have very important functions in the animal body, and during certain periods of the animal's life-pregnancy lactation, egg production, growth-extraordinary demands are made on these elements to meet the needs of the special condition The majority of farmers supply common salt-a source of chlorine-to their animals and to day it has become customary to feed also some form of mineral supplement to the ration, either mixed with the food or in lick form, to provide calcium, phosphorus, iodine, and iron This practice has been attended with excellent results, serving to prevent the ill health and malnutration consequent upon improper dieting or the feeding to stock of rations deficient in one or more of the essential food elements

The relation of the element reduce to the nutrition is acute, in of the animal has received considerable attention pags died during the past decade or so. Livestock Breeding in Great Britain.

The distinction of being the world's foremost live stock breeders falls due to English and Scottish Stockmen, as in Great Britain the finest agricultural live stock breeds, yet created, are bred All breeds of improved qualities such as are bred to-day, are the results of applying intelligence to the great problem of developing into fixed characteristics such exceptional tendencies in individual animals which seem suitable for further development Experience has proved over and over again that when domestic animals are left to themselves they very rapidly deteriorate towards the wild state of their progenitors English and Scottish live stock breeders were the first to have their eyes opened to the fact that there often prevailed exceptional tendencies in their animals, and they came to realise the enormous commercial value of these tendencies and set their minds on intensifying and developing them into certain fixed characteristics so that these could be transmitted from generation to generation, and thus the foundation for animal live stock breeding as an art was actually laid Domestic animals were probably among the earliest possessions of man, and when he changed his nomadic life to that of cultivator of the soil, and became a settler, the first and most pressing necessity was to create beasts of burden. The steadily increasing consumption of meat increased herds and flocks, and the supply was drawn from such beasts when they no longer fulfilled their functions When the industrialisation of Great Britain towards the middle of the eighteenth century changed the economic conditions, the cattle breeding industry was given more attention as the new centres of population around the towns where industries sprang up demanded ever increasing supplies of beef and milk. In this manner the live stock industry in Great Britain slowly developed. and as by degrees British commerce developed in overseas countries where the British settlers commenced to take up new pursuits, so the prominent British breeds were gradually introduced in those far away lands From breeding raw boned long legged, slowgrowing animals of nondescript value, the art of breeding by degrees turned the domestic animals into the high state of usefulness into which to day they are bred, and the transformation into short-legged. compact, well developed animals has indeed been remarkable

The art of stock breeding has nowadays developed to a science which is schelly concerned with the functions performed by living animals. This art must be founded on observations and experiments, and while the live stock men of Great Britain through remarkable energy and great skill succeeded in continuously improving their breeds, it is only of recent date that science has come to their assistance. True, the great men among live stock breeders who developed breeding into a fine art were all highly endowed with a wonderful eye and an able hand through which they succeeded in selecting for perpetuation of their kind such animals which seemed to them most serviceable, but later on they were, perhaps, often carried by a desire to develop "fancy points," overlooking the chief value in the breed animal-its ability to reproduce itself. The scientific breeder to day admits that there is much more required to obtain success than the mere attention to form and structure Selection of animals capable of reproduction has thus developed into a science, and with better understanding of scientific methods in breeding the British breeders will undoubtedly forge ahead and for many years to come rank among the foremost domestic animal breeders of the world

There are many breeds of cattle, sheep, pigs and horses in Great Britain each of which early had its distinctive characteristics. Thus an early writer on the live stock in Great Britain truly stated that the breeds of cattle as they are now found in Great Britain are almost as various as the soil of the different districts. or the fancies of the breeders, and conveniently they were classed according to the comparative size of their horns Like breeders of stock in every other country the stock breeders in Great Britain early concentrated their energies on stimulating production, and the improvement of existing breeds commenced in the districts where a certain type of animal had been bred since time immemorial. Thus where the soil was naturally rich and grain abundantly produced, stall feeding and intensive farming led to the creation of a heavier breed, the inherent qualities of which could be further developed through selected mating . while in other districts where the production of grass and forage was more favourable, and the existing breeds through the course of time had developed a certain ability for making good use of such foods, different types existed, and the live stock men in such districts rightly decided to develop these on other lines In this manner, the magnificent breeds of England and Scotland have developed to what they are to daythe foremost breeds in the world

HERFORD CATILE — The Hereford breed is among the foremost of the worlds many beef cattle breeds, and wherever these white-faced, red-coloured cattle become known they rapidly obtain a position of great importance. As far back as in the year 1627, it was stated by a well-known expect on cattle breeding that no place in England produced better.

During the last hundred years or so the Hereford breed has passed through a process of transformation and to-day it develops in a remarkable degree flesh where the finest cuts are obtained. The Herefords are fulfilling all the requirements of the exacting butcher to-day Among their many good qualities. their ability to exist and develop under the most varied conditions is outstanding. Another remarkable feature is a natural aptitude to fatten easily and to early reach They have proved almost immune to tuberculosis, a proof of great hardiness The Hereford cow is a careful mother, and the breed generally is distinguished by prolificacy and prepotency. It is one of the foremost grazing breeds of the world, and although essentially beef producing, the Herefords are good milkers with fat milk. They have proved immensely popular in the British overseas Dominions, and it is no exaggeration to state that they are the foremost beef breed in the United States of America, while in Argentina they have almost become the national breed

ABERDEEN ANGUS CATTLE -To day the beautiful Aberdeen Angus cattle can be found in every country of the world Although a beef breed par excellence these cattle are by no means bad milkers. They are most pleasing to the eye, black coloured, on short, thick legs, and of a blocky build, and perhaps no other beef breed can show such a minimum of bone For crossing purposes with other breeds the Aberdeen Angus have proved their value possessing singular prepotency as proved by the fact that whenever crossed with other breeds, the progeny invariably turns out black and hornless Wherever imported the Aberdeen Angus always give satisfaction. In New Zealand they have truly contributed more than any other breed towards raising the quality of the beef, in the United States of America they have repeatedly been given pride of place at inter-breed competitions and in several Australian States, even where the soil is not of the best they have always acquired popularity

SHORTHORN CATTLE -Probably no other breed in Great Britain is so generally popular as are the Short horn cattle, concerning which it is stated that they now represent 72 % of the total cattle stock of the coun-The popularity of this breed in all civilised live stock breeding countries is increasing from year to year, and its capacity of turning roughage into beef and milk seems steadily increasing Indeed as a dual purpose breed the Shorthorns rank indisputably as the foremost Owing to the prepotency of the bulls, Shorthorn bulls are often preferred to any other breed for crossing, and the Shorthorn blood infusion in almost any other breed creates distinctive improvement, traceable through several generations Although Short-1 horns are bred in a number of civilised countries, with few exceptions no other breeders in the world have succeeded in creating such remarkable animals as the British Shorthorn breeders, with the result that Shorthorn men in steadily increasing numbers annually visit the celebrated Shorthorn herds of Great Britan for the acquisition of stud animals. It is one of the most beautiful breeds, distinctly British in type and form, with a great function to fill for grading-tup purposes, especially in those many countries where the indigenous cattle can be improved through blood infusion.

LINCOLNSHIRE RED SHORTHORN CATTLE -Since 1805 the Lincoln Red Shorthorns have enjoyed protection through their own Herd Book, and the number of breeders of this distinct type of Shorthorn has increased year after year, in fact, the Lincoln Red Shorthorns are to-day the second largest breed of Pedigree cattle in England It is a commercially paying breed, with a high average milk yield, of early maturity, reaching the butchers' weight at an age of 11 to 21 years old The breed is hardy, of a sound constitution, with strong, beautifully developed frame and, generally speaking combining all the good qualities of the Shorthorns The origin of the breed can be dated back about 100 years when in the counties of Durham and Northumberland resulting from the original heavy Durham cattle which then developed enormous size although slowly maturing through selection and clever mating the present breed evolved

WELSH BLACK CATTLE -This ancient breed, until recently not much known outside Great Britain. deserves to come into prominence in a number of countries where its ability as a reproducer, its compact and heavy type and great fecundity make it desirable for grading-up purposes There is a number of countries where the climate is hot but where vast stretches of tableland at high altitudes with abundant grazing, are specially suitable for live stock breeding and where the natural conditions are often similar to those in the homeland of this breed, and in all these countries there is a future for the Black Welsh They thrive well and remain in good condition even when exposed to wet and cold and when fattened and slaughtered their dead weight takes a very high ratio to the live weight. These cattle are particularly suitable for grading up indigenous breeds in which the live stock man is anxious to develop fattening propensities In many of these foreign countries it is the practice to let the calves run with the mothers. and as the Black Welsh have always been accustomed to grazing on the hills with their calves they have developed comparative immunity to tuberculosis

WELSH BLACK CATTLE -This ancient breed, until recently not much known outside Great Britain. deserves to come into prominence in a number of countries where its ability as a reproducer, its compact and heavy type and great fecundity make it desirable for grading-up purposes There is a number of countries where the climate is hot but where vast stretches of tableland at high altitudes, with abundant grazing, are specially suitable for live stock breeding, and where the natural conditions are often similar to those in the homeland of this breed, and in all these countries there is a future for the Black Welsh They thrive well and remain in good condition even when exposed to wet and cold, and when fattened and slaughtered their dead weight takes a very high ratio to the live weight. These cattle are particularly suitable for grading up indigenous breeds in which the live stock man is anxious to develop fattening propensities In many of these foreign countries it is the practice to let the calves run with the mothers and as the Black Welsh have always been accustomed to grazing on the hills with their calves they have developed comparative immunity to tuberculosis

Livestock Breeding in Great Britain.

The distinction of being the world's foremost live stock breeders falls due to English and Scottish Stockmen, as in Great Britain the finest agricultural live stock breeds, yet created, are bred All breeds of improved qualities such as are bred to-day, are the results of applying intelligence to the great problem of developing into fixed characteristics such exceptional tendencies in individual animals which seem suitable for further development Experience has proved over and over again that when domestic animals are left to themselves they very rapidly deteriorate towards the wild state of their progenitors English and Scottish live stock breeders were the first to have their eyes opened to the fact that there often prevailed exceptional tendencies in their animals, and they came to realise the enormous commercial value of these tendencies and set their minds on intensifying and developing them into certain fixed characteristics so that these could be transmitted from generation to generation, and thus the foundation for animal live stock breeding as an art was actually laid Domestic animals were probably among the earliest possessions of man, and when he changed his nomadic life to that of cultivator of the soil, and became a settler, the first and most pressing necessity was to create beasts of burden. The steadily increasing consumption of meat increased herds and flocks, and the supply was drawn from such beasts when they no longer fulfilled their functions When the industrialisation of Great Britain towards the middle of the eighteenth century changed the economic conditions, the cattle breeding industry was given more attention as the new centres of population around the towns where industries sprang up demanded ever increasing supplies of beef and milk. In this manner the live stock industry in Great Britain slowly developed. and as by degrees British commerce developed in overseas countries where the British settlers commenced to take up new pursuits, so the prominent British breeds were gradually introduced in those far away lands From breeding raw-boned long-legged slowgrowing animals of nondescript value the art of breeding by degrees turned the domestic animals into the high state of usefulness into which to-day they are bred, and the transformation into short-legged, compact, well developed animals has indeed been remarkable

The art of stock breeding has nowadays developed to a science which is shirlly concerned with the functions performed by living animals. This art must be founded on observations and experiments, and while the tock men of Great Britain through remarkable energy and great skill succeeded in continuously improving their breeds, it is only of recent date that science has come to their assistance. True, the great men among live stock breeders who developed breeding into a fine art were all highly endowed with a wonderful eye and an able hand through which they succeeded in selecting for perpetuation of their kind such animals which seemed to them most serviceable, but later on they were, perhaps, often carried by a desire to develop "fancy points," overlooking the chief value in the breed animal-its ability to reproduce itself. The scientific breeder to-day admits that there is much more required to obtain success than the mere attention to form and structure Selection of animals capable of reproduction has thus developed into a science, and with better understanding of scientific methods in breeding the British breeders will undoubtedly forge ahead and for many years to come rank among the foremost domestic animal breeders of the world

There are many breeds of cattle, sheep, pigs and horses in Great Britain each of which early had its distinctive characteristics. Thus an early writer on the live stock in Great Britain truly stated that the breeds of cattle as they are now found in Great Britain are almost as various as the soil of the different districts. or the fancies of the breeders, and conveniently they were classed according to the comparative size of their horns Like breeders of stock in every other country the stock breeders in Great Britain early concentrated their energies on stimulating production, and the improvement of existing breeds commenced in the districts where a certain type of animal had been bred since time immemorial. Thus where the soil was naturally rich and grain abundantly produced, stall-feeding and intensive farming led to the creation of a heavier breed, the inherent qualities of which could be further developed through selected mating . while in other districts where the production of grass and forage was more favourable, and the existing breeds through the course of time had developed a certain ability for making good use of such foods, different types existed, and the live stock men in such districts rightly decided to develop these on other lines. In this manner, the magnificent breeds of England and Scotland have developed to what they are to daythe foremost breeds in the world

The Live Stock estimate for Great Britain comprises Cattle 7,075 000, sheep 22,000,000, pigs 3 450 000, horses 1 430 000

HEREFORD CATTLE — The Hereford breed is among the foremost of the worlds many beef cattle breeds, and wherever these white-faced, red-coloured cattle become known they rapidly obtain a position of great importance. As far back as in the year 1627 it was stated by a well-known expert on cattle breeding that no place in England produced better

During the last hundred years or so the Hereford breed has passed through a process of transformation and to day it develops in a remarkable degree flesh where the finest cuts are obtained. The Here fords are fulfilling all the requirements of the exacting butcher to-day Among their many good qualities, their ability to exist and develop under the most varied conditions is outstanding. Another remarkable feature is a natural aptitude to fatten easily and to early reach maturity. They have proved almost immune to tuberculosis a proof of great hardiness The Hereford cow is a careful mother, and the breed generally is distinguished by prolificacy and prepotency. It is one of the foremost grazing breeds of the world and although essentially beef producing, the Herefords are good milkers with fat milk They have proved immensely popular in the British overseas Dominions, and it is no exaggera tion to state that they are the foremost beef breed in the United States of America, while in Argentina they have almost become the national breed

ABERDEEN ANGUS CATTLE -To day the beautiful Aberdeen Angus cattle can be found in every country of the world Although a beef breed par excellence these cattle are by no means bad milkers. They are most pleasing to the eye black coloured on short, thick legs and of a blocky build, and perhaps no other beef breed can show such a minimum of bone For crossing purposes with other breeds the Aberdeen Angus have proved their value possessing singular prepotency as proved by the fact that whenever crossed with other breeds the progeny invariably turns out black and hornless Wherever imported the Aberdeen Angus always give satisfaction In New Zealand they have truly contributed more than any other breed towards raising the quality of the beef, in the United States of America they have repeatedly been given pride of place at inter breed competitions, and in several Australian States even where the soil is not of the best they have always acquired popularity

Suorthorn Cattle—Probably no other breed in Creat Britain is so generally popular as are the Short horn cattle concerning which it is stated that they now represent 72% of the total cattle stock of the country. The popularity of this breed in all civilised live stock breeding countries is increasing from year to year, and its capacity of turning roughage into beef and milk seems steadily increasing Indeed, as a dual purpose breed the Shorthorns rank midisputably as the foremost. Owing to the prepotency of the bulls. Shorthorn bulls are often preferred to any other breed for crossing and the Shorthorn blood infusion in almost any other breed for a bull of the predict of the shorthorn blood infusion in almost any other breed for active and the shorthorn blood infusion in almost any other breed freates distinctive improvement, traceable through several generations. Although Shorthorns are bred in a number of cavilised countries with few exceptions no other breeders in the world have succeeded in cereating such remarkable animals as the British Shorthorn breeders, with the result that Shorthorn men in steadily increasing numbers annually visit the celebrated Shorthorn herds of Great Britan for the acquisition of stud annuals. It is one of the most beautiful breeds, distinctly British in type and form, with a great function to fill for grading-up purposes, especially in those many countries where the indigenous cattle can be improved through blood infusion.

LINCOLNSHIRE RED SHORTHORN CATTLE -Since 1895 the Lincoln Red Shorthorns have enjoyed protection through their own Herd Book, and the number of breeders of this distinct type of Shorthorn has increased year after year, in fact, the Lincoln Red Shorthorns are to day the second largest breed of Pedigree cattle in England It is a commercially paying breed, with a high average milk yield, of early maturity, reaching the butchers' weight at an age of 11 to 21 years old The breed is hardy, of a sound constitution with strong beautifully developed frame and generally speaking combining all the good qualities of the Shorthorns The origin of the breed can be dated back about 100 years when in the counties of Durham and Northumberland resulting from the original heavy Durham cattle which then developed enormous size although slowly maturing through selection and clever mating the present breed evolved

WELSH BLACK CATTLE -This ancient breed, until recently not much known outside Great Britain. deserves to come into prominence in a number of countries where its ability as a reproducer its compact and heavy type and great fecundity make it desirable for grading up purposes There is a number of countries where the climate is hot but where vast stretches of tableland at high altitudes with abundant grazing are specially suitable for live stock breeding and where the natural conditions are often similar to those in the homeland of this breed, and in all these countries there is a future for the Black Welsh They thrive well and remain in good condition even when exposed to wet and cold and when fattened and slaughtered their dead weight takes a very high ratio to the live weight. ofuses the qualities of his breed when crossed with thers and in many countries overseas especially in bouth Africa their value for crossing is recognised They are remarkable for early maturity and when attened the beef is well marbled succulent and of a ugh commercial value

DEVONSHIRE CATTLE -Some eighty years ago British farmers, attention was drawn to the Devonshire attle and although slowly the breed has been developed until to day it ranks among the foremost beef breeds in Great Britain Breeders of these cattle however conceived the idea of developing the often prevalent distinct milking propensities of the breed and thus the Devon cattle are to day bred for beef as well as for milk production The South Devon cattle now generally reaching a fairly high annual milk pro duction and the South Devon Herd Book Society in which by degrees very good herds are being built up has some remarkable results to register As regards the Devon cattle the control of which is exercised by the Devon Cattle Breeders Association these are nowadays enjoying a far famed reputation for hardiness of constitution and it is a fact that they thrive and develop under almost any conditions. They are singularly immune to tuberculosis. As producers of prime beef they are increasingly coming in vogue

(Illustrat on have 25)

HIGHLAND CATTLE -This is one of the most remarkable breeds in the Scottish districts and few breeds if any exceed the Highland cattle in producing succulent beef. The breed as it exists to day has been gradually developed from one of the old Celtic breeds but whence it originally came is disputed Perhaps the Roman settlers brought this cattle with them from the Roman Campagna where cattle are still bred remarkably like the Highlands They are a slow maturing breed and poor milkers but remarkable for their hardiness and ability to turn rough grazing into meat

GALLOWAY AND BELTED GALLOWAY CATTLE -The Galloway cattle are chiefly at home in Avrshire Wigtownshire Kirkcudbright Dumfriesshire Cumber land and Northumberland and are hardy healthy animals probably indigenous to these districts. Their most remarkable feature is ability to thrive on very poor grazing and yet produce cho ce beef This ability is of a high commercial value in a number of countries where live stock conditions are still in the undeveloped state and as the Galloway bull has proved a fine reproducer the breed deserves to be known outside its own country

The peculiarly coloured cattle called Belted Galloways have been bred in Galloway for over one hundred years but whether the breed is indigenous the origin was in Denmark and Schleswig Holstein a statement for which however there is probably no foundation. It is more probable that the breed has developed in its own homeland. It is a pleasing sight to see a herd of these Belted cattle grazing in a field but otherwise they have no particularly outstanding or remarkable qualities. The main point of character istics is the bull's reproducing ability and breeders hold that for grading up purposes these bulls are of con siderable value In the US of America where there is a Belted Galloway Breed Society in existence the cattle have developed a fairly high milk yield. Not so long ago the number of Belted herds in Holland was not inconsiderable but only one herd exists to-day Speak ing generally the breed is hardy and fatten fairly easily

LONGHORN CATTLE - This breed is distinctly of Roman origin as proved by the size and position of the horns the colour of the animals and some other features and as foundation animals the Longhorns were early utilised by one of the greatest stock breeders the world has ever known Robert Bakewell who made a selection among the Longhorns when he commenced breeding operations At that time the Longhorns were the only breed kept pure in England and already then the cows of the breed enjoyed a high reputation for milk production and fat milk To day it is distinctly a butcher's beast reaching remarkably heavy weight. One of the drawbacks of the breed an inclination to develop long legs has during recent years been fairly successfully overcome and at leading live stock exhibits the Longhorn cattle have invariably shown harmonious development. The full grown animals measure from 3 ft -4 ft across In appearance it is one of the most remarkable breeds very pleasure to the eve

BLUE ALBION CATTLE -These cattle are good mikers decidedly butchers beasts and so far the breed is making headway although the Ped grees in most instances do not date very far back. The Blue Albion Cattle Society has only existed a very few years prior to the foundation of which these cattle were not generally known. The most outstanding feature is their beautiful colour but they have proved capable of developing their milking propensities and the fat percentage is very considerable. The bull is very symmetrically developed and seems to have ability to reproduce his features in the progeny

RED POLLED CATTLE -Among the cattle breeds of Great Britain particularly remarkable for milk yield as well as for fattening propensities -a combination which nowadays is classified as dual purpose qualification in a breed the Red Poll cattle rank very high indeed many an experienced breeder who has successfully bred other breeds is convinced that the Red Polled take pride of place among all the double utility cattle so far created through breeders skill to the county is not on record It is variably stated that They are very pleasing to the eye their beautifully shaped body and deep red colour making them particularly attractive, and in a grazing field a herd of Red Polled is truly a beautiful sight. At Show after Show the Red Polled are awarded the highest distinctions, and their economical feeding properties seem to gain for them a steadily increasing number of admirers For grading up purposes the Red Polled bulls have proved eminently suitable in a great number of countries, and overseas in the British Dominions they are certainly among the chosen favourites

AYRSHIRE CATTLE -This hardy breed the outcome of much skill on the part of the earliest breeders, is now well introduced in almost every country of the Globe, and its reputation ranks very high among the British breeds As a point of fact Ayrshires have in more countries than one even exceeded the performances of the breed in its homeland, and particularly in the British Dominions are they developing larger bags and teats the smallness of which once upon a time caused objections The early origin of the Ayrshire cattle, it is often asserted, was outside Scotland but this statement is questionable. It is certainly one of the foremost dairy breeds remarkable for hardshood, satisfactory butter fat percentage, and longevity To day there is scarcely a country in the world where dairying is developing in which Ayrshire cattle are not to be found a remarkable testimony to the breed's ability to suit the most diverse conditions of life and climate During the last two decades, as a result of great skill on the part of breeders, the milking capacity has been very considerably developed while another feature of great importance in the breeding industry, the ability of breeding true to type is one that distinctly belongs to the Ayrshire breed

FRIESIAN CATTLE -Having only been bred in Great Britain during a relatively short period, the Friesian cattle have rapidly gained in popularity, and the development of their milking propensities during the last ten years has been astonishing. As the breed has now had sufficient time to become thoroughly acclimatised in the British Isles the name of British Friesians is thoroughly deserved As is the case with all other Friesian breeds wherever they are bred to-day, the British Friesians have demonstrated their ability of developing a remarkable milk yield and quite satisfactory fat percentage, and as increased consumption of milk is uppermost in the mind of milk producers as well as medical authorities in every country where the dairying industry is being encouraged the popularity of this breed is explained. No other dairy breed seems capable of constantly breaking its own 'Record" as is the case with the Friesians. Whether the policy of continuously developing the milk yield is the best, is questionable as obviously there are limits beyond which it is imprudent to go, but generally speaking in the British Isles the Priesians have successfully withstood the very great strains imposed upon them The Friesian Cattle Society, founded in 1909, enjoys a steadily increasing membership, and the observant visitor to Pedigree cattle sales and Shows cannot help being struck by the distinct development of size and fattening propensities of the British Friesian cattle, testifying that increased attention is being paid to these points by the breeders

SOUTHDOWN SHEEP -Among the mutton sheep breeds the Southdown easily ranks in the forefront and it is questionable whether any other mutton has the succulence that is so characteristic of this breed It is, indeed, one of the best sheep ever created, and its reputation as a reproducer stands high all over the world, while butchers in all countries show particular preference for the Southdowns owing to the fact that there is no waste in the carcase The bone is exceedingly small and the meat beautifully marbled addition the fleece is of excellent quality, and probably no other sheep breed outside the Merino type grows wool coming so near in classification to the Merinos For crossing purposes the Southdowns are prominent invariably giving to the crosses their own peculiarities One of the largest commodities in the food trade to-day is the "Frozen Lamb' for which New Zealand is probably the chief purveyor, and the Southdown carcase with its remarkable minimum shrinkage has proved particularly suitable for this important trade In that country the number of ewes every year mated with Southdown rams to purvey for the frozen lamb exports is ever increasing

HAMPSHIRE DOWN SHEEP -This is one of the most attractive sheep breeds ever developed through the breeders' skill, and its most outstanding quality is certainly the rapidity with which maturity is reached As an illustration of this statement it should be mentioned that already at an age of six months the Hampshire Down lambs are in demand as sires The ewes are splendid breeders and remain such during a number of years In many countries, particularly in the U.S. of America, have the Hampshires been instrumental in bringing the mutton trade into new channels through their fattening propensities and regularly daily increasing weight. Few other breeds can demonstrate a daily increase of $ lb in weight from the day of birth The Hampshires are perhaps seen at their greatest advantage in their own homeland among the Hampshire Downs where the surroundings seem to fit in with their bulky shape and easy elegant movements, but it is just as true to say that under almost any conditions north or south of the Equator the Hampshires retain their outstanding characteristics, and where once introduced, their dark faces and stocky shape rapidly create for them permanent friends producers the Hampshires are certainly of no mean quality, a clip of from 10 to 14 lbs of unwashed wool being a fair average. Like the Southdown rams. the Hampshire rams are excellent material for purposes Splendid crosses are obtainable crossing the rams with Lincoln Leicester and South down sheep. In several countries of Latin America the agricultural Authorities attention has lately been drawn to the reproductive value of the breed. The Hampshires rank among the sheep breeds as particularly hardy. They are popular in every county of England and the number of flocks registered in the Breeders Flock Book is steadily increasing.

Oktore Down Sheep —This is a strong heavy Down breed in which early maturity has been developed thanks to breeders skill. The Oxford Down rams have been instrumental in grading up sheep breeds in many countries but the breed develops best in its home surroundings. The mutton is of excellent quality and these sheep grow a satisfactory fleece of close texture. During many years Oxford rams have been utilised in grading up the white faced ewes of north Britain and without exaggeration it may be stated that the breed is responsible for great and general improvement in the sheep breeding industry of Great Britain.

SHROPSHIRE SHEEP -Among the leading sheep breeds of Great Britain the Shropshires hold a well established position and while they have played an important part in their homeland probably their destiny for grading up purposes lies in such districts where the native indigenous sheep absolutely require blood infusion of that kind One of the reasons why the Shropshire rams are of outstanding merit for cross breeding is the fact that they originated from a mountain breed and thus have preserved in their veins the peculiarities of that type. Their wool is of fine texture and always in demand in the wool markets and the popularity of the breed is undoubtedly spreading .In Australia the Shropshires have been responsible for a remarkable development in the mutton trade It is claimed for the breed that it matures earlier than any other sheep breeds a statement which however is exaggerated (Illust at on page 44)

Dorset Sheep have been bred since time im memorial in the county of Dorset where they early developed certain qualities through which they have been found suitable in a number of countries for grading up other sheep breeds such as remarkable fecundity easily fattening propensity and compact body build The Dorsets have a deep body broad loins full shoul ders without coarseness and they develop a particularly good leg of mutton with small bone sheep are becoming great favourites wherever they are imported and few other sheep breeds are so adaptable to a variety of local ties and climates. The wool is highly prized and the fleeces always obtain top prices The lambs yield from 21 to 3 lbs wool the ewes up to 7 lbs and yearling rams from 101 to 141 lbs The centre for the Dorset sheep breeding is Dorchester where two types are bred-the Dorset horned and the Dorset Down sheep

ROMNEY SHEEP-No other British sheep have obtained popularity overseas equal to the popularity of the Romney Marsh sheep, which in many countries are given preference to all other breeds. It is claimed for these sheep that their development has been more natural 1 e less artificial than 15 the case with many other British sheep breeds be that as it may their type has for a great length of time retained the same fixity for which these animals were known at their earliest time. The explanation of this is obviously to be found in the peculiar circumstances under which the breed has developed such as soil landscape and climate As a sheep breed in which to a high degree dual purpose qualities are developed the Romney Marsh sheep perhaps take pride of place and on their ability to reproduce and infuse good qualities into the progeny their great popularity has been built up

RYELAND SHEEP - This breed is nowadays con sidered to be one of those British breeds concerning which it can be generally stated that it represents all that is best in a sheep breed. It is claimed for the breed and there is no reason why the statement should not be true that it is the oldest breed in the British Isles and it is recorded that Ryeland flocks were maintained in several parts of Hereford as long ago as in the thirteenth century. The Ryelands have done remarkably well when crossed with overseas Merino sheep and there is no exaggeration in stating that in the British Dominions the Ryelands are gaining in popularity every year. This explains why rams of good Pedigrees if characteristically built and developed to day obtain prices which rank among the highest being paid by overseas breeders. It is a singularly beautiful breed of medium sized sheep with well developed shoulders and backs, saddles and

DEVONSHIRE SHEEP -The two breeds originating in Devonshire but nowadays favoured in many parts of the world are both of remarkable and outstanding qualities The South Devon sheep the flock book of which is kept at Totnes is a fine animal pro ducing very good wool reliable for punctuality in fattening and wool production alike and the wool staple is dense and lustrous. The Devon Woolled Sheep chiefly bred in north and east Devonshire Somerset and Cornwall is of late becoming more known abroad resulting from propaganda work under taken by the Devon Long Woolled Sheep Breeders Society in Somerset Crossed with other sheep breeds such as the Hampshire Down invariably excellent mutton crosses are produced and at Smithfield Shows these crosses have drawn considerable attention of late Flock masters in more countries than one who have imported the Devon Long Woolled rams for grading up purposes have invariably reported good results

KERRY HILL SHEEP—Among the British sheep breeds the Kerry Hill has of late been in great demand in a number of countries among which Spain should be mentioned where the breed to-day has many admirers

WENSEFIDALE SHEEP-This is a long woolled peritorious qualities chiefly known and in its home surroundings Yorkshire and faily appreciated on account of its lustrous wool and the peculiar wave in the staple. The fame of tus preed is now spreading and Wensleydale rams are moressmally coming into favour in districts where the treeders exter for the highly developed woollen trade It is danned for the breed that when crossed with other the ability to grow the same lustrous wool is preriably inherited by the progeny

LIPCOLN LONG WOOLLED SHEEP -There is no exeveration in stating that this breed has done more than any other British sheep breed towards grading up the flocks in Latin America and likewise that it is the fact that the infusion of blood from Lincoln rams can be traced in many a sheep breed in foreign countries testifying to a remarkable reproductive of Holland one of the finest sheep breeds in Europe have inherited their well developed body and wool propensities from Lincoln rams. Their particular value in cross breeding is appreciated everywhere where the rams have been imported. In Mexico a great change has come over the sheep flocks distinctly traceable to the infusion of Lincoln Long Woolled blood Many a breeder in Argentina has in the same manner graded up his sheep and remarkable prices are now and then being paid for rams of outstanding qualities. The Flock Book of the Lincoln Long Woolled Sheep Breeders Association now soon in its fortieth year of existence contains some remarkable Records from which it is evident that these splendid sheep have been reared in Lincolnshire for more than 150 years Few other breeds can show their high average of 25 lbs washed wool of a generally nice fleece. It is a hardy washed wood of the breed early maturing (Illustration page 45)

SUFFOLK SHEEP - These sheep have been bred for ever so long in the county of Suffolk where flocks can be traced back to the year 1855. Unlike other British sheep breeds on account of their black head and outstanding ears and great vitality the Suffolk sheep are rapidly coming to the forefront especially in such countries where the hosiery trade claims a raw wool of a certain staple. Although chiefly a mutton breed the Sulfolks of p an average of 8 lbs of washed wool and good wool. The lambing percentage for this breed is very high. It is certainly among the mos valuable sheep breeds in Great Britain

LEICESTER SHEEP -To this breed was attention given by the big breeders of their day in preference to any other breed and its history is too well known to need repeating. It certainly has been instrumental in improving most of the other breeds of long woolled sheep in Great Britain and many a sheep breed in foreign countries has been graded up and obtained remarkable qualities through the mating with Leicester rams The Leicester ewes breed early and are thus good providers for the early lamb market. As long ago as 150 years back these sheep drew the breeders attention and they continue their reputation as remark able progenitors in cross breeding

CHEVIOT SHEEP -It is claimed that it is one of the oldest pure bred sheep in Great Britain and that it is the most handsome. It is certainly a very useful breed especially suitable for conditions similar to its homeland the Cheviot hills where it has been cherished almost since time immemorial as one of the easiest and cheapest feeders. In the Cheviot Hills they are left to fence for themselves during a great portion of the year often on the scantiest of feed while through the winter even when the snow hes deep they are able to obtain nourishment from grass and heather On the other hand they quickly respond to generous treatment and develop good live weight. At many a Fat Stock Show they fetch top prices Without these sheep the world famed tweed cloth would probably never have been created. During pasturage the ewes generally produce from 4 to 6 lbs washed wool but when well fed they even attain a fleece weight of up to 15 lbs For unknown reasons they. are not found in many a country where they should do exceedingly well such as in Peru Chile Ecuador Salvador etc probably owing to lack of propaganda on the part of the Scottish breeders

WELSH MOUNTAIN SHEEP -A small sized breed easily nourished and able to exist and develop on graz ing where most other sheep would starve. It is a sheep that deserves to be widely known in countries where chimatic conditions soil and other factors mulitate against the heavier breeds. In its home land the Welsh sheep develops excellent mutton and the carcase weight reaches from 45% to 53% It grows fine and close but short wool as a rule white and free It is an early maturing breed from black hairs valued by the butcher as being free from wasteful fat It is distinctly a mountain breed and as such ranks among the best mutton breeds of northern Europe

OTHER SHEEP BREEDS -Several sheep breeds of outstanding qualities but chiefly of local interest and importance are reared in their respective districts such as the LONK sheep a hill range sheep chiefly and the fleece has a nice length and is altogether sound bred in Lancashire Yorkshire and certain parts of

Derbyshire, a handy, very hardy grazer, good wool producer, often used for crossing with other breeds, especially the Scottish Black Faced sheep CLUN sheep is a Shropshire breed with very old Pedigrees in the Clun Forest district, generally liked for its all round qualities as an early maturing breed and fairly good wool producer The HERDWICK sheep is a small-sized, grey-faced sheep, the product of the soil at home in the west Cumberland districts in barren surroundings where it is grazing at altitudes of from 800 to 3000 ft above sea level, thriving well and in these districts often the mainstay of the farmers among whom many rear flocks numbering 1,500 and more Even during very cold winter days the Herdwick sheep maintain themselves even increasing in weight. The rams are invariably horned The WILTSHIRE HORN sheep is one of the very oldest sheep breeds, originating in the county of Wiltshire but nowadays chiefly grazing in the midlands Its mutton is particularly appreciated by the butcher The SWALE-DALE sheep is chiefly bred in Westmorland Durham and Yorkshire a lively animal and a good grazer, of late enjoying appreciation in overseas countries as a mutton producing sheep The DARTMOOR sheep is a beautiful thrifty sheep breed on the high lying lands in Devonshire Its main feature is its remarkably tasty and juicy mutton. The clip is considerable, averaging 12-14 lbs. Full grown, these sheep obtain a killed weight of from 80 to 90 lbs The Dartmoor Sheep Breeders Association, Okehampton, was formed not so long ago and through its energies the Dartmoor sheep is now being imported into various countries of Africa while in the US of America and Canada breeders attention is being drawn to this valuable mountain sheep The Scottish Black-FACED sheep rank as one of the best mutton breeds, and well fattened they always fetch top prices in the butchers' trade It is stated that the breed probably originated from Persia. It is an attractive-looking animal a good grazer, and when crossed with rams of other breeds the progeny obtain increased wool percentage and heavier weight

YORKSHIRE PIGS, known as Large White and Middle White all over the world, are types which have in a remarkable degree contributed to grading up the native pig breeds in a great number of countries while in other countries they have acted as Foundation Stock through which a pig breeding industry has been created and further developed No other pig breed in the world possesses such a remarkable reproducing ability, and chiefly the Large White has been instrumental in creating national values in those countries where the development of the indigenous breed has been turned into a commercial proposition through the infusion of Yorkshire blood This being the fact, its value as a reproducer can hardly be exaggerated. More than any other breed these Yorkshire pigs serve almost any purpose in pig breeding as they are the small holder's pig to the same degree as they are suitable to be bred and fed in large herds

Skill in pig breeding is the outcome of study. observation, painstaking, and energy on the part of the breeder, although success sometimes comes unexpectedly, almost immediately to an inexperienced breeder, but the Yorkshire breed, as it has developed during the many years until it has reached almost perfection to-day, is not the product of good luck in breeding as few pig breeds at the earliest stage of their development have shown so many "throwbacks as has been the case with this breed The international importance of this remarkable breed may be demonstrated by pointing to the fact that Denmark would not have been able to obtain her present position as almost undisputed supplier of bacon to the British market if she had had to rely on her own pig material Denmark maintains her undisputed position of having the best commercial pig breeders because she has been able to continuously draw on the Yorkshire pig breed in England for crossing her own Landrace pigs. It is probably no exaggeration to state that her bacon industry can be best maintained through permanent infusion of Yorkshire blood, and the importance of the breed is therefore, evident The three fundamental "Points" in this breed which have been remarkably developed through the skill of the British breeders are early maturity, capacity of assuming a tremendous weight and fecundity. Many other breeds have been and can be brought to early maturity and growing into large body weight, but often at the expense of fecundity. Not so with the Yorkshire Large White pigs Their litters are uniform and bred healthy and hardy The sows are excellent mothers, good tempered and easily handled Owing to their white skin they are not always capable of existing in the hottest countries such as Brazil or other countries lying in the same meridian, but when legislation in these countries compels the farmers to prepare comfort and shelter for their animals, there are no obstacles against developing pure or cross breeding of the Yorkshires even under the hottest clime

The Middle White Yorkshire pig is a remarkably good forager, and by many a bacon curer considered superior to a number of other types now bred for the market The breed is hardy and the sows are good mothers When fattening it develops very good sides and hams In many overseas countries the Middle White Yorkshire pigs are preferred to the Large Whites, and it is worthy of note that they withstand severe cold even under very trying circumstances such as often prevail in countries like Canada, Finland, and Siberia. This breed possesses the ability of immediately improving the progeny when crossed on even the most valueless of other pig breeds, and probably the future of the breed will be connected with development through blood infusion of the herds of a large number of countries whose nondescript pigs have almost ceased to have any commercial value Particularly in the many negro countries on the African continent may this be the case

LARGE BIACK PIGS—Among existing well-developed, highly commercial pig breeds, the so called eveloped, highly commercial pig breeds, the so called proportions and is able to thrive and develop a day increase in body weight on grass feeding under almost any conditions. This breed is nowadays one of the big litter producers, and the sows breed remarkably punctually, while the boars always reproduce to type. There is a number of countries where the Large Black has a mussion to fill, and perhaps its most outstanding quality is its remarkable hardthood

BERKSHIRE PIGS -Whether these pigs were indigenous to England or not, it is an excellent type of pig whose performances are invariably reliable. They are, of course, not "everybody's pig, as many a breeder is anxious to develop large weight, but when it is aimed at developing neatness of shape, the Berkshire black pig ranks among the foremost, while early maturity and fattening propensities contribute to make it a desirable pig under many agricultural conditions where the larger animal is not desirable Perhaps no other pig breed in Great Britain was ever developed and built up with so little outside blood infusion - a feature of no small value, as this pureness of blood has been a deciding factor among many a breeder overseas prior to choosing a breed for permanency The Berkshires have often been singled out at Smithfield Shows in Carcase Competitions. while in several other classes they are continuously being awarded Championships Point for point the Berkshire breed can be classified among the world's foremost pig breeds (Illustration page 45)

ESSX PICS—The peculiar belting of this pig breed is one of its outstanding features, but great fecundity, early fattening, large litters and good temper are qualities that endear the breed to many farmers. As a bacciner it is prominent, and for the prik trade it is undoubtedly one of the most economical pigs to feed. As the name indicates, the origin of the breed lies in the county of Essex where ever since medieval times the farmers strove to breed an easily fattened pig suitable for the London market. Essex pigs develop remarkably full hams and considerable length, and in carcase competitions they invariably draw attention to their performances.

Wessex Saddleback Pics—Although one of the most action threefs in Great Britain it is only of recent date that this pig has come into prominence, having not so very long ago been on the point of extinction For all round qualities the Wessex Saddleback, like the Essex Pig, is distinctly a farmer's pig, and the attention which many breeders in foreign countries are paying to the breed whenever exhibited indicates that its popularity is increasing it is claimed for the breed that it is an exceptionally rayind feeder, the average gain of it ho in 34 hb of food being the fulle Butchers hold that the Wessex Saddleback pig lalls remarkably well

GLOUESTER OLD SFOTS Pics —Among the British pig breeds the Gloucester "Old Spots' is perhaps the most remarkable looking. It breeds true to type, is an easy feeder, and as during the course of time it has developed a peculiar knack of strolling about for feeding purposes it should prove particularly suitable in all such countries where cheap grazing opportunities are within the reach of even the smallest farmer, as is the case among the African negro tribes where grazing is held in common by very large communities, or in countries such as Tunis, Tripoli etc. It is not commonly bred in large herds but in its homeland it is the poor man's pig

TAMWORTH PIGS - Unfortunately, this ancient breed seems on the point of slowly disappearing as the number of herds in Great Britain is nowadays much smaller than it used to be It is claimed that the Tamworth pigs are the descendants of the wild pig in England, and there is every indication to support this belief For bacon, few if any other breeds excel the Tamworth in point of growing deliciously flavoured meat, and they are among the leanest of existing pig breeds For cross breeding the Tamworth boar has long held a high reputation. The Tamworths are excellent grazers and prolific breeders with large litters, and it should be stated that it is a breed of such outstanding merits that it deserves to be kept up and further developed It resembles the German grazing pig, (Heide Schwein) the only still existing indigenous pig breed in Germany, and probably the Tamworth pig came into the British Isles with the invading Saxons

LINCOLNSHIRE CURLY COATED PIGS are chiefly bred in the county of Lincolnshire. Lop eared, well developed pigs reaching a considerable live weight at an early age, remarkable for fecundity. The curly costed sow is held to be a careful mother, generally with large litters, added to which should be mentioned that these piess are good straters.

Witsii Pics, now breeding true to type, originated through crossings forward and backward with Berkshire, Large Black, Tamworth and Large White Yorkshire breeds, and have probably inhented the good qualities of all of these In appearance they are particularly pleasing animals, especially when pure white They koll well, are good foragers, accustomed to grace over wide areas, while their flesh is very juncy and particularly in demand for pork The Welsh pig attains very large weight which, however, is well proportioned as the back is wide and long, and the harm well set. Remarkably deep sides contribute to make this pig decidedly a butcher's beast. The breed is very problic.

THE SUFFLIK HORSE.—Among remarkable horse breeds created in Great Britain, the Suffolk horse deserves special mention, but strange to say the breed has long been left unnoticed by horse breeders in other countries, although this horse is justified to come to every purpose The Suffolks were probably first bred in the county of Suffolk where they have ever since been looked upon as a national breed as their Pedigrees date back to the year 1506 They have been bred pure for close on 200 years and when the Suffolk Horse Society was founded in 1877 and the first volume of the Suffolk Stud Book was produced a great impetus was given to the Suffolk breeders who ever since have come up to expectations and the annual exhibits of Suffolk horses never fail to illustrate continuous progress in the breeding of this typically English horse While the Suffolks are chiefly suitable for agricultural and other hard work they look well and behave splendidly as carriage horses for military purposes and any work where a steady strong and good tempered horse is required. It is questionable whether any other horse breed can show such a remark able average of longevity a feature of this breed which testifies to a strong constitution and great staying power These horses have over and over again proved their ability to stand very hot climates The Suffolk Horse Breeders Society arrange three yearly sales at Ipswich v here the visitors can see a fine display of truly beauti ful stall one and excellent mares. As a breed it is a Nat onal asset

THE THIRE HORSE-The origin of the Shire horse is d puted but as far as can be correctly judged he vas brought to this country through the Roman leg onaires when Cæsar invaded Britain and stallions were utilised at various outlying military stations for crossing English Landrace mares The remarkable feature about this breed is that it has through these many hundreds of years maintained and increased its enormous size and there is no other horse breed in the world which obtains the same weight. The Shire horse has always been considered by breeders as one of the best paying breeds to rear and its popularity is undoubtedly demonstrated by the fact that prior to the war these horses were imported in increasing numl ers in many countries where agricultural conditions demand a strong horse of staying power They develop their size and maintain their strength in almost every climate and as reproducers the Shire stallions stand second to none A great improvement is notice able in their gaiety of movement

THE CLYDESDALE HORSE has been bred in Lanark shree Scotland for hundreds of years It is one of the foremost among heavy horse breeds with remark able ability to do well in every climate and under most varying conditions of life Thus the Clydesdale horses are nowadays bred in almost every country in Europe while they are do ng splendidly overseas especially in South Africa Australia and New Zealand where Clydesdale Stud Book Societies have long existed This horse is not so compact in its build as the Shire horse and many a really good Clydesdale horse often shows a lack of bulk without however, being faulty on this point and probably no other horse breed can show such particularly sound feet and legs. These horses move with a remarkable speed an outstanding merit that in many countries should make them particularly suitable.

YORKSHIRE HORSE BREEDS -The Yorkshire Coach horse is a handsome well built carriage horse however of no particular importance in Great Britain where the breed has been more or less confined to its homeland the county of Yorkshire but it is a remarkably good horse strong well proportioned beautiful in appearance and movements and particularly suitable for crossing Thus the stallions are particularly appreciated in the US of America Canada and three or four Latin American Republics where it is maintained that the sires invariably implant in their progeny their own out standing qualities. The Cleveland Bay horse stands from 16 hands to 162 His colour is chiefly light or dark bay with black legs and he is an all round horse of considerable value. He is a particular favourite with cavalry men and his reputation as a reliable producer long enjoyed in his own homeland is main tained wherever he is imported

THE HACKNEY HORSE -As a light horse the English Hackney is one of remarkable and outstanding ments In 1878 a Register for English Trotting Horses was established since when the breeding of this useful horse has developed and while the Hackney has many competitors he is still the most typical exponent of a light saddle or carriage horse. It would be no exag geration to state that the Hackney Type so well established in many horse breeding countries because it is recognised that the English prototype combines all that can be desired in a horse of this kind For this reason it may be expected that English Hackney stallions will continue to be in demand in many countries for maintaining the Hackney type It is often stated that the motor car has killed the breeding of this type of horse but those who take a long view are convinced that no mechanised means for personal transport can ever do away with the animal combining as does the Hackney horse speed with elegance and appearance. It is cla med for the Hackney that he is the oldest of all the horse breeds in England

Livestock Breeding in Ireland.

The Lave Stock estimate for Ireland states For Northern Ireland 698 000 cattle 500 000 sheep 237 000 pigs 107 000 horses For the Irish Free State 4 049 000 cattle 3 121 000 sheep 1 178 000 pigs 429 000 horses

The art of stock breeding is not of recent date in this beautiful island. Some seventy years ago a noted English Shorthorn breeder inspecting the live stock in Ireland uttered a warming to his countrymen to be on the alert as otherwise the Irish breeders would soon come to the forefront. By passing the Lave Stock Breeding Act in 1922 the Government of Northern Ireland set an example of foresight and prudence and it is safe to state that it is only a question of time when every country in the world must adopt a similar Act. The scandalous waste of money and material alike which is taking place all over the world through breeding nondescript animals will by degrees come to an end and meantime other live stock breeding countries might well send delegates to Ireland to study the working of this Act and thus on the spot through facts and figures learn how the improvement among the Irish live stock has been accelerated through this measure stated the Act prescribes that applications for Licences for Bull Calves intended to mature must be filed with the Department of Agriculture and placed under the inspection and supervision of qualified live stock officers while bulls not passed will in due course have to be de sexed for breeding purposes The Irish live stock industry is of paramount importance to the people To-day there are about two milking cows per agri cultural holding and of these holdings nearly 77% are farms of 30 acres and less

Among the cattle breeds the Shorthorns probably account for nearly 76% next to which breed in importance are the Ayrshires the Jersey cattle the Red Polled the Friesians and the Kerry cattle The per formance in butter fat and milk yield of every cow is controlled in Northern Ireland where the milk recording system is everywhere in vogue There are two prominent cattle breeds indigenous to the country the Moiled cattle and the Kerry The Moiled cattle have existed since time immemorial and are either red and white brindled red strawberry roan or black in colour but the blacks are by degrees graded out It is a useful breed and will probably reach a fairly high grade of perfection resulting from its capacity for turning any kind of roughage into milk and butter fat and the recently founded Irish Moiled Cattle Society seems to lay great stress on certain points such as very short legs a very thin neck very deep sides and a large udder

The Kerry cattle is the oldest breed in Ireland and its many good points have obtained admirers in many countries where cond tons are similar to those under which this breed has developed during many hundreds of years in its own homeland. The pure-bred Kerry cow of good Pedigree yields easily 8 000 to 10 000 lbs during a lactation period of 45 weeks an autoushing product on when the small size of the animal is taken into consideration. With the Jersey cattle the Kerries probably, share the distinction of being the producers. Angus, 170 Herefore.

of the fattest milk The other breeds in Ireland are the same as in Great Britain—Shorthorns Herefords Friesians Jerseys and Ayrshires

A remarkably good pig the White Ulster has long been bred in this part of Ireland where the Large White Ulster Pig Society through exercising great care in the supervision of herds and breeders has succeeded in weeding out many unsuitable animals This breed has much in common with the Welsh white pig Its chief points are rapid growth early maturity and easy fattening and the boars are remarkable for prepotency.

Sheep breeding is an ancient pursuit in Ireland where a good breed has long been reared the Roscommon sheep a good-sized attractive looking animal whose good into well covered back and broad shoulders easily mark it as a butcher is beast while its wood has a particularly lustrous quality always obtaining the highest market prices. Among other sheep the Black I acod should be particularly menhoned a sheep suitable for mountain grazing and able to fend for itself even under trying circumstances for which reasons the rais deserve to be more widely known outside their country. As a horse breeder the Institutan has always a popular a well deserved reputation. Many a Biorousel band reared in this part of Ireland has fetched a surgeria which has been been exaggeration to state that the Irish horse breeder a skill and eye from horse material entitles him to be classified amon's the world's best thousement.

Livestock Breeding in the British Channel Islands.

The Cattle Stock estimate for the Jersey Island varies from 11,000 to 12,000 The Cattle Stock estimate for the Guernsey Island varies from 6,000 to 6,500

In the small islands of Jersey and Guernsey in I the British Channel, cattle breeding is the main occupation of the farmers, and here two remarkable breeds have been reared and kept pure for a very long time. through the exports of which the foundation of Pedigree Breeders' Societies has been laid in a great number of

THE JERSEY BREED -As far back as in 1763 the States of Jersey by a special Act prohibited the imports into the Island of foreign cattle breeds, through which very wise step it has been possible to achieve three important results-to eliminate competition, to maintain the breed healthy and entirely free from tuberculosis and other contagious diseases, and to control the cattle prices With the advent of the Royal Jersey Agricultural Society, formed about 100 years ago, the Island breeders were encouraged in their agricultural activities and guided in breeding animals of outstanding ments, worthy of attracting the attention of farmers and breeders in other countries, and when the Jersey Herd Book was founded in 1866 for recording the Pedigrees of these Island cattle the breeding and trading in a type of dairy cattle unique from every point of view was given a powerful stimulus It is almost impossible to imagine that the Jersey cattle as they are now known are the descendants of ugly, badly shaped, long legged and uncouth looking forbears, but that is the fact, another illustration demonstrating the possibility of bringing a breed to perfection through careful selection and controlled mating There is no other breed in the world within the same class as the Jersey cattle as valuable for performance and so beautiful in appearance Under such conditions it is obvious that all cattle bred and reared in Jersey are pure bred However, no single animal bred in the island is accorded registration in the Herd Book unless it has passed a very severe test to which it is subjected by the Breed Society's Committee of Inspection at which it must come up to certain standards of ment Some eighty years ago the Jersey cow came much in vogue in the U.S America, and the demand for this breed so far outstripped the available supply that bidders forced up the prices to a remarkable level

Jersey is the largest of the Channel Islands, with an area of 45 square miles, the whole surface being undulating, with fertile valleys enclosed within the hill ranges The Island has the appearance of an orchard dotted with picturesque villages. The climate is very mild and the annual rainfall about 34 inches

this area perhaps only some ten to twelve thousand acres are capable of cultivation, in view of which fact it is indeed worthy of note that here since time immemorial a breed of cattle has been reared the reputation of which has now spread all over the world. a remarkable testimonial to the high skill in cattle breeding which has here developed in the course of -The origin of the breed can be traced back to the year 900 when French monks shipped Brittany cattle to the Island, with a view of here continuing the breeding of a type of dairy cow for which the village of Diellette in Brittany then enjoyed a great reputation, and where the best butter in France in those days was made To Guernsey is due the honour of having been the first country in Europe to adopt the system of recording milk and butter fat tests for the full period of 365 days, a system of Recording that has brought out the remarkable high butter-fat content in the milk of the Guernsey cattle Although it is commonly held that the Guernsey cattle are related to the Jersey, this is not the fact. In size as well as in general appearance these two breeds differ very considerably The medium size of the Guernsey cow averages from 1,000 to 1,200 lbs, while the bulls reach a weight up to 1,850 lbs Guernsey Island bulls are splended reproducers, and as Guernsey cattle herds now exist in a great number of countries, these Island bulls enjoy a considerable demand for blood refreshing The Island is completely free from contagious diseases, and abortion has never occurred, a remarkable fact The Herd Book Committee of the Royal Guernsey Agricultural Society is exercising the strictest control of the breeding of these valuable cattle, and their purity nowadays is absolutely certain In fact, no Guernsey animal having once left the Island is ever permitted to return. The annual export numbers reach 750-850 head of which probably 55% are shipped to U.S. America and other countries of the American continent. It is claimed for the Guernsey cattle that their constitutional vigour makes them adaptable to every climate, a circumstance that has made it possible to rear these beautiful animals in such different climates as Canada, Brazil, Chile, South Africa, etc. The vigour and development of the bulls is the outcome of the rule adopted by the Society a long time ago, that no bull may be utilised for service until he has reached the age of fifteen months, prior to which he must be shown with his dam before the Herd Book Committee which alone is com-THE GUERNSEY BREED-The total area of this petent to decide whether the animal is suitable for

Livestock Breeding in Australia.

The Live Stock estimate for Australia states cattle 13 282 000, sheep 104,000,000, pigs 1,130,000, live stock raising countries of the world. When it is borne in mind that so far, Australia is only very scantily populated, although the largest island in the world, and that enormous stretches of land are still entirely uncultivated the already existing large herds of cattle and sheep signify that the development of her live stock industry has only just begun. It is a remarkable fact that in Australia no indigenous cattle, sheep pigs horses or goats ever existed, and the now existing agricultural animals were originally imported Almost all the arable portions of Australia are well fitted for the various agricultural crops of Europe and America and wheat cotton and sugar cane grow to perfection Forage plants do exceedingly well Australia is practically the geographical centre of the British Empire First visited by Dutch and Portuguese sailing vessels in the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Centuries the distinction of really discovering Australia fell to Capt James Cook who was the first to hoist the British flag-in Botany Bay in 1770-when he claimed Australia on behalf of the British Crown However the colonisation of Australia did not commence until many years later but the enormous possibilities of development, almost boundless were scarcely imagined To day the Commonwealth people create new wealth every year worth £450,000 000, a figure which is rapidly increasing. Thus the value of agricultural production may be estimated at £110 000 000 the pastoral at £125 000 000, the dairy and allied industries at £50 000 000 forestry and fishery at £14 000 000, mining £27,000 000, and manufacturing £140 000,000, while Australia's over seas trade reaches the considerable figure of nearly £310 000 000 per annum With the small population of only about 6 000,000 the national thrift is remarkable, as indicated by the number of bank depositors now reaching over 4 200 000, with deposits of over £196 000 000, equalling more than £32 per head Railway construction now covers over 25 000 miles and the capital invested in railways is over £290 000 000 As the territory of Australia is over 3 000 000 square rules it will be seen that the country holds an important future for its own and for the surplus population in other parts of the British Empire Australia is undoubtedly becoming one of the most influential among the British Dominions and that she will play a great part in the future of Pacific development is undoubted

In Australia the opportunities for mixed farming l are certainly without limit, as owing to the climatic

Australia bids fair to become one of the largest | breeding can be profitably undertaken, such as wheat cultivation sugar cane, cotton growing fruit and wine pressing, and every other suitable agricultural crop, while sheep and cattle breeding already undertaken on extensive lines, are still only just beginning Along the coastal areas of Western Australia Victoria. New South Wales and Queensland, and a portion of South Australia the rainfall is satisfactory, but in the Northern Territory and in the northern most parts of Queensland where the climate is tropical, the rainfall is unreliable

The Shorthorn breed is coming much to the fore in the dairying districts of New South Wales and Queensland, and the Jersey and Guernsey breeds are increasing in number and quality from year to year The Ayrshire breed is becoming more popular A campaign is carried on in favour of utilising a better class of bull, and in Queensland and South and Western Australia this campaign has already caused great improvements in cattle breeding. Herd testing has been carried on for a number of years much to the betterment of the pure bred herds This has greatly assisted the dairy industry as well as pig and poultry breeding and the milk yield is increasing in the individual herds The value of the production of these industries is now approaching £80 000 000 per annum In the State of Victoria a condensed milk industry and the manufacture of milk powder from skimmed milk are creating new wealth. By adopting a crop cultivation competition scheme the yield in maize and other crops has been considerably increased-120 bushels of grain to the acre now being obtained in many parts on the coast land, while the green fodder yield has increased from 30 to 45, or more, tons per acre The fruit cultivation industry is rapidly increasing in importance in all the States, and in Victoria, where a very extensive irrigation system has been opened up so that 25% of the acreage of this State is now artificially supplied with water, over 1,500,000 acres can be constantly irrigated

The Australian meat industry is assuming dimensions which promise that the country is bound to become one of the greatest factors in the world's meat supply. If the Government will continue granting facilities for the cattle industry through granting leases for large areas thereby ensuring safety to the capital invested there is no reason why scrub breeding should not rapidly be discarded. When Argentina has reached its utmost limits of production-and signs are not failing that this may soon be the case-Australia will probably rapidly compete with that country as conditions every branch of agriculture and live stock | well as Uruguay in the production of high class quality nearer at hand than Europe Australia may probably be expected to expand during the next twenty five years According to statistics the export figures for Australian meat however are greatly varying owing to the long periods of drought which especially in Queensland are damaging the industry. In the year 1925 the exports reached over 148 000 tons What conditions may become in Northern Australia in the near future is impossible to foretell but as there are over 1 000 000 square miles in that district it may be anticipated that when the surface water ques tion has been satisfactorily arranged, the present stock there of scarcely more than 1 000 000 head of cattle will rapidly increase indeed according to expert opinion it should be possible to maintain 10 000 000 head of beef cattle on these 1 000 000 square miles of tropical land So far capital is holding back for obvious reasons. It is stated on good authority that when the Northern Territory has been prepared for a safe Beef Cattle Industry Australia's annual exports will certainly reach from 300 000 to 310 000 tons of meat per annum For this huge export outlets would be easily found in Europe chiefly in Great Britain whose home production of beef mutton and lamb average I 100 000 tons while her requirements per annum are over 2 000 000 tons Perhaps the chief difficulty in the Australian meat export trade lies in the fact that although the country can raise as good cattle and sheep as any other country the enormous distances over which the live stock has to be carried to reach the seaboard causes a depreciation in value of over 30% Another drawback of course is the horns which constantly inflict damage when the animals are driven in large herds but the question of dehorning all the Australian beef breeds is now under serious consideration The following figures indicate the development in Australia's live stock industry Seventy five years ago the live stock estimate mentioned 1 900 000 head of cattle 16 000 000 sheep and 160 000 horses as compared with the latest census as already mentioned It may be maintained that the rapid development of Australia is owing to the pastoral industry and wool production of which the clp is now approaching the

beef As the United States of America is already declining from year to year in beef production while

Canada for many years to come may hold the field in the United States for her surplus production as being

In the following figures intendent the development in Australia as live stock industry. Seventy five years ago the live stock estimate mentioned 1 900 000 head of cattle 16 000 000 heave pand 160 000 horses as compared with the latest census as already mentioned. It may be maintained that the rapid development of Australia is owing to the pastoral industry and wool production of which the clp is now approaching the stupendous annual value of £18 000 000. As Australia only consumes from 6% to 9% of this clip it is obvious that the huge capital emanating from the exports of the balance is a source of great importance. The home consumption in Australia of sheep and lambs now reaches about 15 000 000 and the rest is exported. The number of wool growers in Australia has now reached over 86 000 and their skill as breeders is considerable. As Australia is the largest Mermo wool producer it is obvious that she will increasingly become a most important factor in the world's woollengoods manufacturing industries. Buyers from all parts of the world even year visit Australia, and the commercial value of her Merino wool is rapidly in creasing owing to better breeding stock and better storing and marketing conditions. This in turn is causing a steady demand for high class rams and there are few graziers in the Commonwealth who to day would deny the importance to their flocks of breeding from the best stud animals available. The present day type of Merino sheep in Australia is a different animal to what could be seen some 25 years ago the breeders having succeeded in creating a splendid compact animal growing a maximum amount of wool vielding a fine carcase and able to withstand the long dry periods Thus while the average wool clip per animal some fifty years ago only reached 4 lbs it has slowly increased and is now over 8 lbs Sheep experts hold that the Northern Territory offers the greatest opportunity for sheep breeding and if reliable export facilities over a well conducted railway net can be provided and safe land tenure can be offered sufficient numbers of sheep breeders can be attracted while capital to finance their operations may be forthcoming through joint Government and Bank measures It is generally held in Australia that sheep breeding is a better proposition than cattle. In a recent estimate by one of the best known sheep experts it was stated that Australia s sheep carrying capacity can be developed to 35% more sheep than the present stock. If this is possible Australia will soon dominate the world s Merino wool markets

The total area of this State is 87 800 sand Scotland

The populate on ow reaches 19 people to the square mile and thus Victoria is the most densely populated of the fire Australian States. The soil is wonderfully fert le and the country is remarkably well developed. The live stock cons sits of 730 000 dairy cows and 790 000 head of other cattle 14 000 000 sheep 350 000 pigs and 465 000 horses. The annual production of butter is over 100 000 000 lbs 6,250 000 lbs of cheese over 22 000 000 lbs of bacon and hams and 180 000 onl lbs of 000 lbs of bacon and hams

Victorias overseas trade is rapidly expanding now worth over £95 000 000. The banking figures are remarkable—16 banks with over 885 branches and the deposted capital according to the latest statistics reaching over £94 000 000. The numerous Friendly Societies have a membership of over £56 000 possessing funds of over £4 000 000. Wheat is cultivated on an area of over 3 000 000 acres and oats on £275 000 acres

NEW SOUTH WALES The acreage in this State is nearly 200,000 000 acres Along the coastal belt farming and agriculture are the chief industries On the highlands and the slopes cattle breeding is the main pursuit, and on the plains sheep breeding and wool production dominate all other occupations. In the coastal districts the ranfall varies from 2 t in to 70 in, on the western slopes from 16 in to 32 in, on the '

from 8 in to 27 in and on the tablelands from 19 in to 65 in and thus this State is well provided for in this respect. Out of the total population of Australia New South Wales holds about 2 325 000 The culti vation of wheat is increasing. The total acreage suitable for wheat growing is over 25 000 000 acres According to an estimate of recent date the total value of farm properties in the State approximated £388 000 000 The production of wool has now reached over 400 000 000 lbs derived from a sheep stock of about 48 000 000 The dairying industry is rapidly expanding the production of butter now reaching nearly 118 000 000 lbs

QUEENSLAND Perhaps Queensland is the most progressive among the Australian States That she will become one of the largest contributors of agricultural wealth is beyond any doubt Rightly Queensland has been called a land of promise with its enormous areas available for development with its beautiful climate and with opportunities for everybody The chief industries are of course agricultural and pastoral According to the latest estimate there are 190 000 acres in the Palmerston area west of Innisfail available for development while in the Callide Valley 3 000 000 acres are available for settlers When the north coa t line is satisfactorily linked in with Rockhampton Gladstone and Maryborough and the Capella lands in Central Queensland can be made more accessible very large areas suitable for cotton growing dairying and sheep raising will be available for the intending settlers. In the Roma district an area of about 330 000 acres will soon be portioned up for settlement purposes Queensland is par preference the home of the large cattle stations These are chiefly in the north west and western parts of the State bordering on Northern and Central Australia 16 the Northern Territory The fact that a great number of these stations carry from 10 000 to 50 000 head of beef cattle indicates the great possibilities for the development of the beef breeding industry Queensland Government own and run various cattle farms on which some 250 000 head of cattle are grazing The number of head of cattle in Queensland is now more than 7 000 000 Large areas suitable for cattle ranching are available at most reasonable rentalsfrom 1d per acre and upwards The maximum area that can be acquired by one person for grazing purposes on satisfactory tenure terms is 60 000 acres

Sheep breeding is coming much to the fore in Queensland The last official estimate states the number of sheep as 18 000 000 Sheep grazing is here carried on on a large scale the average flocks reaching 4,200 head A considerable number of grazing farms are now available in sizes of 10 000 acres A few years ago a new Irrigation Act was adopted according to which the whole of the country has been organised into water districts. Queensland like the other States however suffers from lack of population as there is only one person to every two square miles blessed by nature the soil being exceedingly fertile and everything seems to grow in abundance. Including the Northern Territory the total area of South Australia is over 900 000 square miles Excellent wheat is cultivated for which top market prices are always obtained Probably the wine and dried fruit industries will reach very large figures, and the quality of these products is excellent Poultry farming is a highly paying proposition and bids fair to become one of the staple industries of the State Sheep breeding is rapidly developing. The total area of pastoral lands in South Australia occupied or not is estimated at 211 000 000 acres approximating 87% of the State When the water question can be properly solved South Australia will probably develop as a wool producing country but the lack of water is a serious drawback. The rainfall is very scanty and probably the whole of the sheep country has a rainfall of less than 10 in On the other hand the natural grasses growing everywhere are highly nutritious and a certain degree of moisture is absorbed through these. The latest sheep stock estimate stated the total number of sheep as reaching 6 250 000 head Of the total acreage pro bably only 52% are occupied A Royal Commission is now enquiring into the possibilities of developing the pastoral industries of the State with a view of solving the water question and providing means to attract sheep breeders as settlers. There is many a sheep station of more than 1 000 square miles in area and the greater number of these stations hold 175 to 200 square miles With a view of filling up the large empty spaces it has been suggested that leases of from 50 to 75 years should be granted to sheep breeders who should obtain their tenures without paying any thing for the first fifteen years Up to now more than £10 000 000 have been spent on water con servation and large further capital will be set aside for water boring in the undeveloped districts. In the Tarcoola d strict stretching to the borders of Western Austral a and the Northern Territory an area of over 100 000 000 acres is now being surveyed in regard to water the idea being to secure an ample supply of water so that the district may develop as a sheep breeding area

SOUTH AUSTRALIA This State is particularly

WESTERN AUSTRALIA This State holds the enor mous area of 976 000 square miles and the coast length is over 5 000 m les The population is smaller than m any other Australian State but probably settlers will be attracted in ever increasing numbers as and when road—and railway—communications are develop ing The lack of population may be appreciated by stating that while Great Britain has 390 people to every square mile there is only one person to every two square miles in Western Australia Of the large area suitable for farming probably only some 9 000 000 acres are now bearing crops. Wheat cultivation is developing and the qual ties of the grain are excellent The fruit industry is also developing and will be rapidly increasing as and when regular markets can be found for the splendid quality fruit cultivated all over the State Coal and gold mining is likewise expanding, but the live stock industry is the prime source of income According to the latest estimate, the sheep stock has now reached about 7,000 000 head, cattle over 1,000 000, and horses about 188,000 Pig breeding has not yet developed, and the number of pigs is probably less than 100 000 Sheep breeding is, therefore, the main pursuit in live stock breeding. The annual clip now reaches about 50,000 000 lbs Of the total acreage, about 625,000,000 acres roughly 370 000,000 acres are still unoccupied, belonging to the Government According to the Land Act, Western Australia is divided into five main "Divisions -Kimberley, North West, Eastern South West, and Eucla Of these, the first three mentioned are especially suitable for pastoral purposes In the eastern division gold mining yields a considerable source of income Mixed farming is chiefly carried on in the South Western and Eucla divisions In the South Western division, which contains a long strip of splendid land along the south western and southern coast, the bulk of the population resides There are more than 40,000 000 acres suitable for agricultural purposes, with excellent soil and reliable rainfall Probably the best lands in the whole of the State are along the northern belt, extending from Dongara on the coast eastward through Mingeneu and northwards up to the Murchison river With a view of attracting suitable settlers most easy terms are offered by the Government, and areas of from 100 to 1 000 acres of land suitable for cultivation can be acquired at a rental of from 10s to 15s Land suitable for orchards and vineyards, or garden farming, is obtainable in blocks of from 5 to 50 acres at 10s, the payment of which can be extended over several years Grazing land is obtainable on lease in blocks of up to 5,000 acres for tenures of from 25 to 30 years. In the north and north-west portions large pastoral leases exist, comprising up to 1,000,000 acres, thus the De Grey Sheep Station in the north west not so long ago comprised 5 000 000 acres Splendid pastoral lands can be leased in blocks of 1 000 acres at rentals of from 3s to 10s per annum. It may be stated that of all the States, Western Australia probably offers the greatest scope for expansion of the pastoral industry So far, pastoral leases aggregating more than 220,000,000 acres have been taken up climate is good, and speaking generally, contagious diseases are not doing much damage. In the Kimberley district many cattle stations comprise I 000 000 or more acres, generally carrying 30 000 head. In the Murchison district the average cattle station comprises 250 000 acres Stations holding from 50 000 to 100 000 acres seem however, to be most in demand It is stated that the carrying capacity is here one sheep to 14 acres, but further back in the country one sheep per 20 acres seems to be the rule. On the best developed stations in the Murchison district an average of 20,000 sheep are kept on an acreage of 200,000 acres

The general sheep breed in Western Australia is the Merino, and the care of the flocks and selection of valuable stud animals as now displayed bodes well for the future of this important branch of live stock breeding Thus ram breeding as an industry is now being supported by the Government and meeting with much encouragement in the State Besides Merinos, Lincoln, Dorset Horn Border Leicester, Shropshire and Romney Marsh breeds are much in favour A number of sheep stations are catering for the early lamb trade, and it is generally held that the Dorset Horned rams are the most suitable for cross breeding Undoubtedly, sheep breeding is more in vogue among farmers than cattle breeding. The Department of Agriculture is encouraging the smaller farmers, men with limited capital advising them to run stations holding from 300 to 1 000 sheep only. chiefly for raising lambs for the early lamb trade As a producer of Merino wool. Western Australia ranks high The Department of Agriculture spares no pains in instructing and advising wool growers in their task, and wool buying houses and wool brokers report a steadily improving quality. During recent years meat works for cattle and sheep have been erected, and a brisk trade in frozen and canned beef tallow and hides, is springing up with a number of European countries and with Java

NORTHERN TERRITORY Not so long ago it was held that the white man could not exist in Northern Australia but practical experiments have proved that this is by no means the case Indeed, it has been satisfactorily proved that the white man can easily live in this extremely hot country, and as alicep can profitably be raised on the tablelands everything junts towards the Northern Territory becoming a past raid district of considerable importance. If Nith Australia Act, passed some years ago provided in the division of the territory into two parts. North Australia Act, passed some years ago provided in the division of the territory into two parts. North Australia and Central Australia of south fairs, north and south of the 20th parallel of south fairs, north and south of the 20th parallel of south fairs. Commission, and various schemes for optical consideration. While the division is the tit is by no means unendurable.

Livestock Breeding in Tasmania.

The Live Stock estimate for Tasmania states cattle 300 000, sheep 2,250 000 piss 105 000

Among the beautiful islands of the world Tasmania (stands out as one of the prettiest With its salubrious climate-mean winter temperature 48 deg, and summer 62 deg an average rainfall of about 21 in and glorious scenery it is indeed a country where life is pleasant. The larger part of Tasmania consists of a central plateau at a general elevation of 3 000 ft on the summit of which there are several most picturesque lakes First discovered by the Dutchman Tasman in 1642 the Island was partly explored by Capt James Cook in 1759 and since 1901 it is one of the States of the Commonwealth of Australia The total area of the island is about 26 200 square miles or nearly the size of Scotland The chief natural assets besides a fertile soil consist of very large limestone deposits stretching for mile upon mile now utilised for the production of carbide and electrolytic zinc minerals such as copper coal bismuth asbestos etc. and very large forests From the agricultural point of view Tasmania is noticeable for cultivation of fruit potatoes and wheat Excellent wheat yielding from 48 to 54 bushels to the acre barley of highest quality suitable for whiskey distilling oats of outstanding quality and | Europe and Japan pulse beans and peas are grown Fruit cultivation is rapidly extending 26 000 acres now bearing an apple crop which in normal years yields over 3 800 000 bushels Owing to the lovely climate and abundant grazing dairying seems to make rapid strides and feeding crops are being extended from year to year. The vigorous live stock now bred testifies to the fact that Tasmania is an excellent country for the dairy farmer, indeed 93% of all Tasmanian butter exported is now graded as First quality To the production of cheese great atten tion is given and speaking generally, Tasmanian dairy products find a ready market in all European countries As a result of the 1920 Forestry Act by which a

Forestry Department was created the timber industry is now rapidly expanding and 1 500 000 acres bearing magnificent timber are set aside as State property

From the live stock breeding point of view Tasmania seems pre-eminently suitable for sheep breeding Thus the wool clip now reaches the con siderable weight of about 11 000 000 lbs chiefly sold at the annual wool sales held at Hobart and Launceston to attend which buyers travel from America

Livestock Breeding in New Zealand.

The Live Stock estimate for New Zealand states cattle 3 465 000 sheep 24 920 000, pigs 485 000 horses 328 000

With only a small population—1 500 000—of is the wonderful pastures most of which have been which 99% are pure British the achievements of the created through the sowing of English grasses. The New Zealand people during the eighty years of civilised settlement deserve the greatest admiration the most distant of all the British Commonwealth of nations New Zealand is probably the most thoroughly British in sentiment as well as in the mode of living and the New Zealander is undoubtedly the best customer of the British Empire as he purchases about 73% of his overseas requirements from other countries within the Empire Visiting the country a few years ago the Prince of Wales expressed his impression of what he had seen in New Zealand in the following words Zealand is a land not merely of opportunity but equal opportunity for all and I have well being and happiness more uniformly ut the population of town and country is par preference the live stock . with a very wide range of soils and suitable for the various branches forage crops seem to have an almost miraculous quality for fattening live stock and one has to travel far and wide to find a country where the general standard of live stock is as high as in New Zealand The Depart ment of Agriculture is one of the most vigorously active institutions of its kind unceasingly trying to organise services to farmers and primary production lending a helping hand everywhere through instruction scientific investigation and research work con nected with agriculture in field and laboratory. The high level of live stock breeding can best be summarised by stating that it rests on permanent rotational grass lands where no winter housing is required

Some years ago the Government adopted a scheme for placing a large acreage under irrigation. In 1010 3,200 acres were irrigated while now over 30 000 acres are subjected to the scheme. As a result a considerable number of settlers will be assisted in their the greatest asset of the island requirements of water, and every year the scheme covers larger areas. Unlike the Australian live stock man who for local reasons must base his economs on large holdings the New Zealand farmer prefers a smaller, but well managed farm. Dairying is making rapid headway, and from very small beginnings the industry is now one of the most important in New Zealand as illustrated by the fact that while 32 years are 5000 tons of butter and cheese were exported. valued at £500 000, the exports are now valued at nearly $20,000,000, all derived from the small farms Within measurable time New Zealand may probably oust Denmark as the chief supplier of Great Britain's requirements in dairy produce. When herd testing was introduced some years ago it was found that a great number of the dairy cows consisted of very inferior animals of obscure ancestry Every year the number of "scrubs" weeded out and replaced by valuable animals of high performance increases the value of the dairy industry and within the next ten years the dairy cattle stock of New Zealand will probably be of exceptionally high value. One of the chief reasons why the herd testing system is making headway is the co-operative spirit among the farmers who in this respect seem to be imbued with the same ideas and aims as the Danish farmers. To-day it is widely recognised that co operation brings in train the greatest possible advantages such as bringing live stock breeders together whereby instruction is facilitated while it contributes to general efforts for better marketing methods. In turn this hearty co-operation among the farmers enables them to obtain cheaper and better financing from banks or export merchants, and the farmers feel that they are a power in the land with which the country has to reckon The Dairy Produce Control Board seems by degrees to obtain absolute control in spite of opposition here and there Soil and climatic conditions are remarkably suitable for the production of milk and butter, and as the cows can be grazed the whole year round, many of the handscaps attached to dairy husbandry in other countries of the world are non-existent. The systematic increase in the butter-fat yield per cow testifies to the great value of herd-testing

When it is borne in mind how small the population really is the following figures are remarkable and illustrate the saving disposition of the islanders. In the Government and Trustee Savings Banks the deposits now reach nearly £55 000 000, cqual to over £40 for every man woman and child This figure is better appreciated by a comparison with the average saving per head in Great Britain a little over £6 According to Government statistics the private wealth in the Dominion has reached the stupendous sum of £745 000 000, i.e., over £53 per head of the whole population Shortly before the war the total wealth of the nation was estimated at about £260 per head

The comparatively large sheep stock in New Zealand now nearly 25 000 000 head signifies that the island is the sheep breeders country. Probably this number will considerably increase in the future, mainly owing to the circumstance that on the mountains, on the hills and on the plains alike English grasses grow abundantly Sheep breeding has always been the mainstay of New Zealand farming, and it is only in recent years that the dairy industry has come to the fore Until towards the end of the last century most of the agricultural land in New Zealand belonged to larger estates, since when, however, for various reasons, chiefly political and economic, the tendency to portion up these large properties has made itself felt to-day the average flock is under 1,000 sheep. Flocks numbering 15,000-20,000 are very few Undoubtedly it is owing to this sub-division of properties that it has been possible to raise the quality of the breeding stock by means of better supervision of the flocks, and more thorough selection of breed animals, and the increased yield in wool and better carcases is evident everywhere The annual value of the New Zealand clip has reached £10 000,000 As for sheep breeds, British breeds predominate. In the South Island the Merino sheep is still in vogue and Merino blood can be traced in many districts. The Romney Marsh sheep is probably the dominating breed, having been utilised during the last twenty-five years in both Islands, where it is a favourite owing to its ability to withstand foot rot, a sickness difficult to fight when the grasses grow too abundantly in the moist districts It is maintained, and probably rightly, that the Romney Marsh sheep, as bred to day in New Zealand, grow a denser fleece than the Romneys in England Speaking generally, the New Zealand Romney a develop a more lustrous and well-crimped fleece, while on the other hand it is probable that the size of the animals is somewhat smaller than in their original homeland Another breed of excellent quality in New Zealand. the Southdown, is in great favour owing to its suitability for crossing with the Romney ewe as the cross yields a magnificent carcase, weighing from 35 to 40 lbs at the age of 18 to 20 weeks The Leicester breed is another favourite, chiefly in the Canterbury district, with open and dry country. In this district great changes have taken place lately, the cross breds having slowly pushed out the pure-bred Mermos

One of the most prominent among the world's sheep breeds, the Corriedale, evolved through breeders' skill by means of in breeding and half-breeding between Lincoln Merino and Leicester-Merino, is a remarkable achievement in stockbreeding. The present day's Corriedale sheep rank among the world's best sheep breeds for which the market demand, especially in Latin America seems to be steadily increasing Cornedales yield a very desirable carcase and a clip of considerable weight and 50's-56's Bradford count The Corriedale ewes seem to mate particularly well with all the other Down breeds. The Ryeland sheep is coming much to the fore in New Zealand. At the Annual Live Stock Shows the interested visitor has ample opportunities for examining the various British sheep breeds concerning which, without exaggeration, it might be stated that they are evolving all the good points of their ancestry in a remarkably high degree. While soil and conditions generally are exceedingly favourable for sheep breeding it should not be overlooked that the present high standard of the flocks is to a certain degree the result of the skill imparted to breeding in the island through Scottish and English

sheep men

The refrigerating industry in New Zealand has made astoundingly rapid expansion. Thus the daykilling capacity of the Islington, Smithfield Imlay. Picton and Burnside works is now over 24 500 sheep and lambs and 400 head of cattle, the annual output reaching over 12 million carcases of frozen mutton and lamb The fact that the English butcher now-adays often demands and obtains the same price for Canterbury lamb as for best English speaks volumes for New Zealand's sheep breeding industry Since 1882 the New Zealand exports of frozen lamb and mutton have steadily increased in quantity and quality alike. and the prospects are that this increase will continue as and when the storage capacity in New Zealand develops. The importance of this matter cannot be overlooked and it was amply illustrated during the war years when the New Zealand refrigerating stores held large meat resources of England and her Albes The present storage capacity has reached over 6 800 000 carcases The Department of Agriculture exercises the most stringent slaughter-house control. and no meat is exported unless first subjected to a very rigid veterinary inspection. Thus, resulting from the Slaughtering Act of 1908, no live stock can lawfully be dressed or sold for human consumption unless first registered at the slaughterhouse and no meat can be exported without a Government Inspection Certificate To day New Zealand is remarkably healthy as regards her live stock

As the Dairy Industry develops pro breeding will follow , but while it has up till now been a side line almost there is now a tendency among New Zealand farmers towards taking up pig breeding on a large scale. as it is recognised that what Denmark can do in the way of pig breeding and feeding, the New Zealand farmers should be able to do just as well The Meat Producers' Board is investigating the question of maugurating pig breeding on a large scale, and the various breeds suitable for the purpose are being examined Obviously there are several pure piz breeds in Great Britain suitable for New Zealand's requirements, but it is not impossible that a new type of pig may ultimately be evolved through crossing different British breeds, once they have been tried separately as to performance and fecundity when several generations, from imported breeds, reared in New Zealand can afford material for study and selection Presumably pig breeding would rapidly develop in New Zealand owing to the existing farm systemthe many small holdings, and there is no reason why nig farming should not assume large proportions as stabling is an easy matter to contend with and grazing is plentiful It follows, then, that the most suitable breeds for the country would have to be selected among the grazing breeds. There never was any indigenous pig breed in New Zealand as far as is known. and the earliest known pigs were probably imported through the advent of sailing vessels

Poultry farming is, likewise, being encouraged. and the production has now reached an annual value of more than £3,500 000

Livestock Breeding in The Union of South Africa.

By DR A E. ROMYN Chief Animal Husbandry Officer Department of Agriculture Union of South Africa For its size the Union of South Africa ranks high ! as a stock raising country Despite local set backs the live stock industry is making steady progress and with the opening up of regular overseas markets further great developments are looked for

HORSES, MULES AND ASSES With the exception of certain areas in the north and along the eastern coast the country is well suited to the production of horses Complaints in regard to lack of hone and size are largely attributable to the underfeeding of much of the young stock during the winter months

In the agricultural census of 1925 the number of horses is given at 814 894 that of mules 124 010, and asses at 729 856 It is unlikely that these figures will increase much in the near future. The competition of the motor car has discouraged the breeding of light horses and the relative cheapness of ox transport power has prevented the general use of heavy horses or mules for draught purposes There is however, a good, though limited demand for heavy mules or horses in areas short of grazing for work oxen

It is difficult to foretell the immediate future of horse breeding in South Africa but as the value of land increases there should be a large increase in the number of draught horses and mules used on the smaller farms and in areas of relatively close settlement. At present the Thoroughbred is the predominant light horse type while the Percherons and Clydesdales are the most popular of the heavy horse breeds

The bulk of the cattle stock in the CATTLE

Union is to be found in the eastern and northern sections of the country, the greatest density being along the eastern coast and on the High Veld of the Orange Free State and the Transvaal So far, the different beeds and types are not distributed with any strict relation to the value and nature of the country on which they are farmed. With the exception of the town dairying areas around Johannesburg and Capetown, the beef and dairy breeds are used in more or less equal numbers in the various Provinces a general was it looks now, however, as though the Northern Transpal Bechuanaland and the North Western Cape Province will become more or less specialised ranching areas with dairying predominat ing over most of the remainder of the cattle rearing areas of the Union

According to the agricultural Census Returns, there were 9 738,337 head of cattle in the Union in 1925, of which 5 316 516 are described as European owned Of the whole total probably less than 1 000 000 head show any definite traces of improved blood, the great majority being of a mixed native type in which Afrikander blood predominates Until recently the prevalence of trek borne diseases has discouraged rapid distribution of improved cattle For many years the presence of these diseases has-and in some areas still does-made it inadvisable to breed away from the native types which have acquired a relative natural immunity to local diseases Veterinary research and regular dipping have made it possible now to control the disease situation and progress will be much more rapid in the future There is a great potential market for pure bred cattle in South Africa

Nearly all the common British breeds of cattle and the Frieslands have been tried in the Union Given a fair chance they have all proved satisfactory and the question of the best breed for any particular area is still a debatable point. At present the Fries lands are the imported breed in most general use with the Shorthorns and South Devons as the next most common. The best cattle and the most advanced cattle management practices are in general to be found in Natal and certain sections of the eastern Cape Province and the Eastern Highveld improvement especially in regard to dairying, is, however, noticeable throughout the country

SHEEP AND GOATS Sheep farming has of recent years been the most popular type of livestock farm both in the type of sheep and in the method of market- United States of America

ing the wool clip. Much of this advance has been due to the educational work of the Department of Agriculture and to the introduction of vermin proof fencing which does away with the necessity of 'Kraaling the sheep at night. The stimulus of prosperity has proved a great spur to progress

According to the 1925 Census Returns the number of sheep in the Union is 32 005 627 woolled and 3 564 085 non woolled. The woolled sheep are practically all Merino, there is only a small representation of British breeds and the non woolled are predominantly of the Afrikander and Persian types which are characterused by fat tails and hairy coverings of various markings

Two interesting recent developments in the sheep industry are the attempt to spread the production of sheep northwards into what are now the cattle ranching areas and the introduction of British breeds of sheep into localised areas for the production of crossbred mutton lambs Both policies have given encouraging results

In 1925 2,137,194 Angora and 5,885,663 other gosts were reported in the Union In general, gosts are kept where the conditions are unsuitable for the raising of Merino sheep. The centre of the Angora industry is in the Cape Midlands Though South Africa is noted for the high quality of its mohair clip there has since 1919 been for economic reasons a gradual decrease in the number of goats farmed Other goats are distributed over the dry Karroo areas. the North West Cape Province and the native areas They are hardy breed readily and are the most profitable type of stock to keep where sheep do not thrive

Pigs For a number of years efforts have been made to build up a bacon industry in the Union In 1025 the number of pigs was returned as 800 883 While this number shows a decrease over previous years, there has undoubtedly been a great improvement in the average standard of the pigs and the method of feeding during recent years

South Africa is eminently suited to the production of pigs. The climate is relatively mild there is little disease, and maize is easy to grow Pigs do well and once an export trade is stabilised great progress is looked for in the industry

The commonest type of pig is the Large Black. Tamworths Large and Middle Whites and Berkshires are raised both pure and for crossing purposes Attempts have also been made with the land pig and a ing in the Union Great advances have been made few Duroc Jerseys have been imported from the vet perfectly suitable for milling Through the discovery of the Garnet wheat and the opening up of the very fertile lands in the Peace River country, further facilities for the wheat grower have been created This colossal expansion in the wheat growing industry would not have been possible if the Wheat Pooling system had not been adopted The importance of the Pools in world economy can easily be appreciated by stating that whereas only a few years ago the number of wheat-cultivating Pool members reached 70,000, it is now over 130,000, disposing of more than 70% of the total wheat crop of the Dominion Saskatchewan is to-day the leading wheat producing Province, but as and when new wheat areas come under the plough new wheat elevators will be erected making it possible for the farmers to reach the foreign markets at a minimum of transport cost and a maximum of profit

As a fruit growing country Canada has already achieved world reputation. To day on the Ontario, British Columbia and Nova Scotia fruit farms, the chief fruit growers in the Dominion tens of thousands of fruit growers make a comfortable living through their apple orchards The acreage under fruit trees is increasing from year to year, and while the value of good orchard land a few years ago was estimated at $200 per acre, it is now worth more than $500 The total fruit crop of Canada has now reached a value of over $20 000 000, the apple crop alone reaching more than 2,750,000 barrels The exports of Canadian fruit are now worth more than $12,000 000 per year Of all the apples consumed in Great Britain, Canada provides some 20% as against the American contribution of 38%

The Federal Department of Agriculture as well as all the Provincial Departments are anxious to improve the cattle stock of Canada and no efforts are spared in this respect. On many a farm excellent Shorthorn, Hereford, Aberdeen Angus and Ayrshire cattle are bred, and the Red Poll cattle are every year gaining in popularity In all the Provinces there is distinct improvement in the cattle stock, but mainly among the dairy cattle herds is the progressive improvement noticeable The number of milk-producing and since the introduction of the herd-testing polytical farms which daily supply their milk to co-operative some years ago, a general improvement in the said darries has now reached 332,000, carrying the milk stock is everywhere noticeable yield from 2,315 000 cows. The total quantity of milk, according to official statistics delivered to dairies has now reached the figure of 2.864 000 000 lbs. The total value of dairy products handled in Canadian dairies has now reached $137,000 000, while the capital invested in dairy machinery, plant, buildings, etc. is considerably over $49,000,000 All over the Dominion co-operative selling Agencies handle the marketable live stock, and the "scrub" animals seem slowly to disappear in favour of animals of higher production and known ancestry Conditions are in favour of increasing the cattle industry as the never failing meat markets of Great Britain and several other countries are open, provided Canada can deliver high class meat The general improvement of the live stock is illustrated through the following comparison Four years ago the total estimated value of Canada's farm live stock reached $700 000 000, as against an estimated value to-day of $738,000,000

To-day there are 3 700 known breeders of sheep The most favoured breeds are the English Down sheep-Oxford Downs and Hampshire Downs, while Shropshires are slowly coming into general favour Whether the policy of pursuing Down sheep breeding is the best is questionable but as conditions are much more favourable for cross breeding, probably crossing the ewes with Dorset, Leicester and Lincoln rams would lead more rapidly to improvement of the wool

There are many indications pointing towards British Columbia becoming the chief cattle country of Canada, as the finest cattle grazing lands in North America lie in the Cariboo and Chilcotin districts, beautiful rolling country, where the pastures are excellent, interspersed with light forests yielding good shelter Huge herds of cattle could easily be grazed in this district. Speaking generally almost the whole of British Columbia is suitable for cattle breeding; and with the populous wealthy coast cities for markets, the possibilities for the cattle breeding in histry pri almost boundless

All over Canada the same cattle, sheep, pry and horse breeds which exist in Great Britain are rewed, Livestock Breeding in Newfoundland.

The Lave Stock estimate for Newfoundland states cattle 28 000, sheep 87,000, pigs 15 000, horses 16,500

The last Stock Census was effected in 1921, and probably the numbers have increased it is interesting to note, in companson with the year 1921, that in 1901 the number of cattle was 32,760, sheep 78,000, pigs 34,680, and horses 8 850.

For a number of reasons the breeding of live stock has not developed in this ancient Colony, chiefly owing to farming having been neglected until quite recently, while the lack of a road system the predominance of the fishing industry, the absence of a suitable market for surplus production and, last but not least the length of the winters have militated against this branch of agriculture, but during the last fifteen years successive Governments have done their best to encourage improved methods in farming and the rearing of live stock. On a number of farms Pedigree stud animals have been imported from Canada as well as from England and there is certainly a strong desire among Newfoundland farmers to develop their live stocks Sheep are doing exceedingly well and cattle seem to thrive in spite of the enforced stabling during a great portion of the year At Agricultural Shows it has of late been demonstrated that the island is suitable for live stock breeding, and probably it is only a question of time when pig and sheep rearing will assume considerable proportions With the exception of the long winters and the often enormous falls of snow, there are no obstacles whatever militating against a live stock industry. When spring sets in, as a rule very suddenly, luxuriant pastures seem to spring up everywhere, and the whole island is suddenly traversed by a number of rivers and small streams The country is however although being the oldest of all the British colonies almost entirely undeveloped but for the stock breeder there are certainly advantages worthy of being utilised The Department of Agriculture St Johns, is anxious to attract settlers, and land is obtainable on very attractive conditions It is not always borne in mind that Newfoundland is nearer to Europe than any other part of the American continent

The total area is probably about 42 000 square miles

Darrying makes the largest single contribution to the agricultural output of the country. In 1921 production reached 8 199,379 gallons of milk and 574 867 pounds of butter, valued at $4,919 627. It is estimated that one third of the poultry raised in 1921 was killed for food, and that 1 091 897 dozen eggs worth $655,138 were produced.

The Newfoundland Poultry Association arranges annual demonstrations of scientific breeding and correct feeding and housing, distributes eggs for hatching and birds for breeding purposes, and arranges lectures on poultry industry

The best prospects for agricultural development appear to be in the western part of the island, which has more fertile soil and a more favourable climate. The valleys drained by the Codroy river, forming one of the most promising farming districts are about 40 miles long and from 10 to 12 miles wide, other areas, such as located in the St. George's Bay district and in the Humber Valley are held to be capable of more_extensive cultivation

The interior of the island has never been explored and is unknown to this very day, but in view of the large herds of caribou grazing there it is probable that between the mountain ranges fertile valleys exist Much of the country is barren The number of rivers is also remarkable, but most of these are small, all issuing from ponds or lakes in the interior. For the salmon fisherman Newfoundland is an ideal spot The climate is very plesaant much milder than on the continent, and the summer is never too warm. As a potato grower the Newfoundland farmer has long met with success and some of the best varieties ever cultivated in the world grow in Newfoundland Crops of wheat oats and barley are cultivated although they do not always ripen fully So far, the area of cultivated lands regularly farmed is probably only some 125 000 acres Newfoundland is said to be a potential source of supply of Eel grass a marine plant growing profusely in many inlets where fresh water comes in contact with vegetation. This weed has peculiar qualities rendering it valuable as an insulating material, non inflammable a non conductor of heat or cold and it repels insects and does not decay Newfoundland has been famous for many years for the excellent type of dog bred here The original natives who were gradually pushed out by the incoming settlers have long been extinct The population to-day are descendants of the first Irish and English settlers The first mention of the island was in the year 1 000 when Vikings were driven ashore but in 1497 it was rediscovered by the Bristol navigator Cabot The news of the wonderful qualities of fish around the waters soon attracted fishermen from many countries, and quarrels and disturbance occurred until in 1583 the island was taken in possession on behalf of Queen

Elizabeth of England, much to the disgust of the French who had long claimed the right Resulting from a treaty, signed at Utrecht in 1713, England's undisputed right to the island was agreed to by France and the first Legislative assembly met at St Johns ın 1833

A very large portion of the Labrador country belongs to Newfoundland So far entirely unexploited, these vast lands may possibly one day become the seat of great industries as they contain very large areas of forest suitable for paper and other industries, large and powerful rivers with large cataracts from which, according to experts between four and five million horse power can easily be obtained The question of commercially produced electrical energy is to day uppermost in the electrician's mind and there is no reason why Labrador should not develop her great resources in this respect. The interior of Labrador consists chiefly of a large elevated plateau the surface of which has been estimated at exceeding 200 000 square miles The principal rivers the Stude the Big River, the Whale rivers the Koksoak the Grand River and the Manicouga according to experts, can be utilised to create electric energy, and the magnificent Grand Falls on the Grand River are probably among the most imposing water falls in the world Although the climate is too cold to ripen the ordinary cereals, vegetables develop good size and qualities and especially potatoes do well Although Labrador neither is nor will ever be developed as an agricultural country, it can produce an abundance of food stuffs and there is no reason why a considerable sheep breeding industry should not be started in view of the fact that large herds of caribou already exist. It is only a question of experimenting with a view of finding out the most suitable breed, and probably such breeds as the native Finnish sheep, or the Landrace sheep in North Norway would do well The steadily growing population of fishermen and people interested in developing the enormous quantities of salmon and other fish which, so far, constitute the chief wealth of Labrador, would be the chief consumers In the interior, Labrador is inhabited by Indians whose chief existence is trading in furs Of course, the winter is very severe, but the short summer is exceedingly pleasant with warm days The total area of the Labrador lands is over 500,000 square miles, the greater portion of which belongs to Canada, while the portion which now, as the result of recent legal settlement belongs to Newfoundland, is the district which is drained by rivers flowing into the Atlantic Ocean Labrador was probably first heard of through the Norsemen about the year 990 Later on Portuguese fishermen flocked to the coast to explore the wealth of fish in the waters and the Portuguese Corteral gave the name to the country In the year 1578, five or six different nations sent their fishing fleets, since when every year the advent of fishermen has created trading opportunities with the Indians. In the year 1600 a Charter was granted to a London trading concern. since when Newfoundland settlers in increasing numbers have taken up their abode along the coasts

The Romney Sheep in The Antipodes

By ERNEST J WACKRILL Secretary New Zealand Romney Marsh Sheep Breeders Association

To sheep men the world over the name Romney is inseparably connected with the Romney Marsh district in the County of Kent, England, an extensive tract of land reclaimed from the sea many centuries ago Here is the original home of the Romney Marsh Sheep of which Youatt stated that a long woolled and highly valuable breed of sheep has been kept on the Marsh from time immemorial

As the new lands of the Southern Hemisphere became settled by migrants from the Old Country it was only natural that shipments of live stock from the United Kingdom quickly followed to enable these early settlers to stock the farms with sheep from the country of their birth Between 1853 the date of the arrival of the first importation to New Zealand, and 1894 when the first Flock Book was published 51 Romney flocks were established and Records kept that it would be to the advantage of the breed if an Association was formed to devote the time of its governing body to Romney sheep in New Zealand In 1904, the Romney breeders registered in the New Zealand flock book seceded from the Association and formed the New Zealand Romney Marsh Sheep Breeders' Association, incorporated by Charter the same year Flock Book, Vol 1, published in 1905, contained the Records of 75 registered flocks, the total number of breeding ewes registered being 14,796, ewe lambs 6,851, stud rams entered singly 191, total 21,838 Volume 23 of the Flock Book, the latest volume published, contains the particulars of 595 registered flocks, an increase of 520 pure bred Romney flocks since the issue of the first volume, while the number of registered sheep entered is breeding ewes 85,685, ewe lambs 39,989, stud rams entered singly by the New Zealand Sheep Breeders' Association | 1,193—total 126 667 From these figures the remark-lt was felt by some of the principal Romney breeders | able progress made will be seen as well as the dominan position to-day of the Romney breed in the Dominion Reference to the figures compiled by the NZ Government for 1927 shows that the number of Stud sheep of various breeds registered throughout New Zealand totalled 305 004 of which the Romney Stud sheep number 164 346, or 45% of registered sheep in the Dominion

Any breed of sheep, no matter how well suited constitutionally to the conditions to which it is subjected, must possess certain important characteristics if it is to become and remain the dominant breed in New Zealand The fleece produced must be a reasonable weight, the wool must be even and suitable for woollen and cloth manufacture, the ewes must possess conformation and milking ability to produce high-grade lambs and the hoggets must be hardy and easy to Constitution, conformation, weighty fleece and high grade wool are therefore the four fundamentals that must ever be the goal of the sheep breeder During the last decade there has not only been a great increase in the number of flocks but also a marked improvement in the quality of the Romney Marsh sheep, in fact, sheep in the best flocks are equal if not superior to anything that can be produced elsewhere. The best sheep have equal bone constitution, symmetry, and true character to the best that can be obtained from Kent in England and they are far ahead in the quality and weight of their wool New Zealand breeders have always attached great importance to wool, being careful to select sheep with even fleeces of good quality. and the covering has also been carefully considered with the result that our best Romneys carry wool wherever it is possible for it to grow. For many years it was essential to import English rams to impart character to our flocks but even then it was necessary to cull their progeny largely on account of the irregularity of their get. They, however, assisted to improve the bone and constitution of our sheep, but importations of late have not had the effect desired. chiefly through the high standard our sheep have attained The Association is always endeavouring to raise the standard of our flocks generally All stud sheep sold have to be inspected by competent inspectors appointed by the Council of the Association and those passed are tattooed in one ear with the official mark of the Association (NZRM) before a transfer can be given by the vendor Sheep for export are carefully inspected and the Inspector has power to refuse passing or tattooing any sheep he considers not typical of the breed, or unfit for export Romneys have been tried all over the Dominion on land little above sea level, on hilly and broken country, on mountains running up to 5 000 and 6 000 feet, and on those mixed classes of land they have proved a success No survey of the popularity of the Romney breed in the Antipodes would be complete without dealing with the export trade from New Zealand Flock owners in Australia, Canada, U.S. America and most of the countries of South America have for years known of the merits of our sheep, and importations have been made by the leading Pastoralists of these overseas | reduce its value

countries until the export business reached a very high figure Our largest customer to-day is the Argentina Republic, closely followed by the United States of America, Australia and Canada It is worthy of notice that the New Zealand-bred Romney sheep secured the World's Championship at the Argentine Centenary International Exposition held at Buenos Aires in 1910, when a Romney ram, bred in this Dominion, secured the Championship of the World against the sheep bred and exhibited by the leading English and Argentina Stud masters At the Panama-Pacific International Exposition held at San Francisco in 1915, a NZ bred Romney ram secured the Championship against all competitors, and this Association was awarded the Medal of Honour for the best collection of Romney wool staples exhibited

The following is the description of a typical New Zealand Romney Marsh sheep as drawn up by the Council of the NZ Romney Marsh Sheep Breeders' Association -Head wide, level between ears which should be large and thick and covered with fine hair or preferably partially covered with a downy wool, with good thick foretop, no horns and the poll well covered with wool Eyes large, bright and prominent Face in ewes full not too white, and in rams broad and powerful Nose coal black, width between nostrils Neck well set at the shoulders, strong and thick Shoulder wide, well coupled, level with back Chest wide and deep. Back straight with wide and flat The ribs well sprung, especially at the base, and the loin should be of good length to provide a quantity of meat Rump wide long, well turned Tail set in almost level with the chine A low set tail is objectionable, as ewes with that defect often fail as breeders

Breeders of Romneys should aim at breeding their sheep with full legs of mutton as these are much in request on the London market Legs should be short, with big bone and large, shapely feet of black The sheep should stand well on its legs, and these be well set apart free from any twist or defect Although black feet are preferable, there is always a large proportion of light coloured feet in every Romney flock, and a really good sheep should not be condemned on that account It is often stated that Romneys with light-coloured feet suffer more from foot rot than those with black but this has not been generally experienced The fleece should be of dense even quality, and of a good decided staple from fore top on head to end of tail and free from kemps The wool should be even in length from the head to the tail of the sheep and as far as possible of the same character throughout Of course the best part of the fleece is found on the fore-end of the sheep, but breeders should grow the fleece as even as possible. A good covering of wool on the back is essential, and when grasping it, it should fill the hand The fleece should be of good length open freely, be crimpy from skin to tip lustrous and soft, have a dense feel, and be free from cross fibres It should also be free from kemps which materially Excellence of British Breeds.

The British stock breeder early recognised that the principle of satisfying the demand for Stud animals at home and abroad should be guiding his activities, and this, more perhaps than any other factor, contributed to advance the excellence of the British Breeds The breaking up of the English village when the manorial system came in vogue, to be followed by the breaking up of the Handicrafts through capitalism, brought in train Trade Unions and co-operative Societies through which the living conditions of the people were improved Thus the time-honoured system of killing for general consumption such animals only that had been worn out as beasts of burden had to give way as better quality meat was demanded As in England, so in many other countries, especially in Western Europe and the American United States modern capitalism commenced dominating the primitive system of economy was followed by the aristocracy of the owners of large herds of grazing beasts, and when the free traffic became controlled and the movement of herds and flocks restricted, increased attention was paid to the improvement of these herds and flocks In this manner the British utility breeds were steadily and systematically improved (In the year 1825 a wellknown writer, Rev. J. Goldsmith, stated that cattle and farming stock, taken at £4 an acre of the cultivated land, was worth 240 million, and the British Islands now boast of the most valuable breeds in the world" "The British Empire," G B Whitaker Ave Maria Lane, London) The agricultural countries of Europe slowly became industrialized populations of Europe, 180 million in 1800, had increased to 452 million when the world war broke out, while the populations of Great Britain, Germany and the American United States rose from 100 million in the year 1800 to nearly 500 million in 1914 These increases in populations made for enormously increased consumption of animal products, and this in turn created competition among live stock breeders, and explains why Great Britain, long before any other country, created those many utility breeds of supreme excellence which for more than 100 years have been the envy and admiration of breeders in all other countries of the world Specialization in breeding in Great Britain and the British Dominions Overseas has been carried to a point scarcely conceived only 30 years ago, and the stock improvers in other countries have to day a wide field for selection among the British and Overseas British Breeds These are represented by the following

Pedigree Livestock Markets.

Money is always well spent on Pedigree Stock if the stockbreeder and improver exercise necessary care in selection of breed animals. The average indiscriminately bred stock yielding at the best a meagre profit, but more often than not causing losses, is always a drag on the market and will undoubtedly decrease in numbers as and when the breeders and stock improvers have their eyes opened to the utter uselessness of creating such animals Good livestock in civilised countries will steadily improve in quality as and when the consuming public refuse to be satisfied with bad quality meat, etc. Although the numbers of the existing world stock are vast, the totals are to-day insufficient to meet the rapidly increasing demands. and the slow-maturing, badly-shaped and low yielding cattle, sheep, pigs, poultry, etc., whose performances do not justify their existence, must give way to earlymaturing, easily-fattening, high yielding animals of excellent Breeds

The United States of America is no longer a meat supplier, having become a large purchaser. Although 10 years have elapsed since the world war, meat prices have not been reduced, as compared with 1914 figures-indeed, they are much higher, thus :

LONDON MEAT MARKET 1998 70 89, 46 19, 52 8% 4.3 7% 60 6% 82 89, 64 49, 64 49, 64 49, 67 49, Scottish Beef increase a nee 1914 by Sides Lughsh Argentina Scottish Mutton Hindouarters English Wethers Argent na Scott sh La nb Engl sh New Zealand Austral an (London Retail Meat Traders Assor at on a F gures August 1998)

International Legislation must some day regulate the most important of all human pursuits-utility stock breeding

While magnificent stock is bred in very many countries the stock of Great Britain enjoys World reputation, and British breed animals are everywhere in demand Many might-be purchasers lack, however, knowledge concerning sources of supplies stockbreeders should not be contented with the knowledge that they do breed superior animals—they must unceasingly create selling opportunities by means of propaganda In the many British Overseas Colonies and Protectorates the livestock is being steadily improved and there is a field in these many far-away lands for breed animals of Pedigree-proved superiority For the use of those stock breeders who may desire to enter these markets, the following list of Colonies, and officials in charge of the respective livestock departments, may prove useful, while the various British Trade Commissioners and Imperial Trade Correspondents, now stationed in all parts of the world, are always prepared to advise and enlighten those who care to make use of their functions as commercial outposts.

Exhibition and Laying Strains of Poultry.

By W H COOK Orpington

There is often prevalent a rather vague idea, among Poultry keepers of all countries as to what constitutes "Laying Strains"

Strains have nothing whatever to do with breeds. for the breed denotes the variety of the fowl while the strain denotes the blood from which the fowls originate and whether it emanates from a flock of rood lavers

When a breeder has bred on certain lines for a number of years and only reproduces from the best "lavers," it is generally acceded that he has developed a strain of his own

It is generally acknowledged that there is a vast difference between the Exhibition type of fowl as compared with the high class utility bird In the first place, the Exhibition birds are bred to a different standard conforming to Club Ideals, which foster the many different breeds and varieties of the present day The great difference between the two classes of fowls is so noticeable even to the stranger visiting a Poultry Exhibition as generally the birds in the Exhibition classes are of double the size and perfect to a novice, whereas, on the other hand at a visit to the utility or commercial classes one immediately notices the smaller and more compact type of fowl which shows extremely active habits and looks what it represents ie, a producer yearly of a very large number of eggs

In many countries Exhibition strains have been mated with selected laying strains reproducing a larger fowl of that true colour which the breed represents and such birds are in great demand among those who look for beauty and type while requiring their egg backete filled according to the season of the year

WHITE LEGHORN COCKEREL

Because a fowl can be exhibited and win premier prizes at leading Exhibitions it does not follow that this bird is capable of reproducing himself. but it has been noticed on more than one occasion that many a visitor, with funds at his disposal, at various Exhibitions purchases only prize winners, often those leading among these, and yet is unable to reproduce a single specimen comparable to its genitors, a circumstance that testifies that strain is everything in the breeding of live stock Again, many a bird, perhaps with a in colour, while their ments are plainly visible even blemish, although bred from the best possible stock.

when properly mated, may reproduce high quality, even Exhibition-worthy stock. It is never advisable to mate a pen of birds in haphazard manner, because strain always tells its own tale.

Of course, birds from which Exhibition stock is expected, should themselves be as near perfection as possible, while conforming to the standard of the breed or the variety represented, although it may sometimes be possible to counteract defects in the male bird by suitable selection of the female bird

It is scarcely likely that a breeder, knowing, for instance, that he should require a low tail carriage in all the males perhaps also in the females, can obtain such results when a high tail male bird is used. Therefore, the happy medium should always be aimed at, through carefully blending together, first, birds of the correct strains known to reproduce very high class stock and secondly, one should never attempt to breed from any fowl with a defect which very likely may be reproduced in the progeny

Trap nesting eliminates numerous defects, and by trap-nesting the breeding stock one is able to tell exactly which hen produces the perfect bird so that both she and her progeny are the birds to be selected for the next season s breeding

Although trap-nesting requires a considerable amount of time it should be borne in mind that the breeder is able to easily distinguish by means of Toe-Punching or a system of ringing with coloured rings, the actual stock produced from each female in the breeding pen

Sometimes it may happen that two hens be sisters and apparently alike in every detail, yet one of them may prove her worth ten times over as a breeder of perfect specimens as compared with the sister. It is generally acceded that in the breeding of high class Exhibition fowls "like produces like," and this always comes true if the fowls selected for breeding have been carefully bred from a well known strain over a period of years.

My contention is that Exhibition stock and strains equal the layer or utility foul in hardmess, stamma and proliticacy, indeed, speaking generally, they are harder and appear to stand any climate under almost any conditions, and thrive and do well, while as layers, if the breeding stock is carefully selected, Exhibition strains seldom lag for behind the utility stock of the same breed. The Poultry keeper has now come to recognise that the breeding of perfect Exhibition stock is an art which not everybody is capable to master with absolute hope of certainty.

As for utility poultry, the strides obtained during the past few years in increasing the egg yield seem really wenderful, although in many a case such strides were obtained at the sacrifice of stamina in the stock and undersized eggs. Many breeders aim at very high "Records," although this, of course, sooner or later must affect the ability to reproduce in the stock. On the other hand, if breeders would aim at the 200 mark, i.e., endeavour to obtain a large egg and a flock average of 200, undoubtedly with such eggs from their laying stock they should soon reap benefit through selling the eggs while retaining vigour and stamina in the flocks of fowls

The type of layer which comes nearest to standard of perfection is the bird that has length and depth of body, and is boat shaped in appearance, as such fowls possess capacity for laying a good number of eggs-during the year while reproducing first class utility progeny

I always warn against breeding from a fowl with a long, snakelike head, narrow body and back, and legs set too closely together, as this type certainly is a throw-out, emanating from poorly-bred stock

One should am at selecting birds with bright eyes, legs set well apart, lively and active in habits, and mate these females with the corresponding, ee, right stamp male, one that was bred from a good layer, corning from a strain noted for strength and stamina Poultry Exhibitions all over the World to-day offer inducement and encouragement in the classes for Exhibition and Utility birds, and while it is farfly easy for the judge to pick out winners in the high-class Exhibition breeds, it is more difficult to rightly select in the utility classes those birds remarkable for producing the greatest number of eggs. On the other hand, however, in the utility classes it should not be so very difficult to discover the best, if only breed characteristics are carefully taken into consideration, while at the same time bearing in mind what really constitutes a good laying fow! While to the experienced person with years of practise behind him in handling poultry no two birds seem alike, many a visitor to the Poultry Exhibition is often inclined to judge one bird as meriterious as another

The Light Sussex and Rhode Island Red.

By W A ROBERTS NUPS SPBA

There is, of course, as everybody knows just as 2 great a tendency to fashion in breeds of poultry as to other things whether live or dead. More often than 3 not these fashions or crazes for a particular breed are utterly illogical and their life is accordingly a short

There are however, one or two breeds of poultry that have luckly escaped thus unhealthy tendency of being boomed yet have by their own peculiar intrinsic ment, steadily forged ahead in the favour of the poultry keeping public, year by year. The writer has two breeds of poultry in his mind that come under this category, viz: Light Sussex and RI Reds. Each year one sees more and more of them—now what is the reason? Let us thus:

General utility? This is undoubted both breeds fulfil the phrase all round fowls in that they fill the egg basket in the cold months of the year as well as the spring and summer when most feathered fowl will give their quota. They are each of them first class Table Fowl though the yellow flesh of the R1 Red militates against their popularity in England where the fashion is for white flesh.

Constitution: both breeds are perfectly hardy and stand cold well and damp better than most breeds Appearance and ability to breed true to parent stock: Both breeds are exceedingly pleasing, a flock of Light Sussex pullets on a green grass field is a sight not easily forgotten the touches of dense black on the hackle wing and tail showing up against the white is very pleasing. If trouble is taken over the foundation stock and care over the purchase of cockerels from time to time there will be but few culls which one has to throw out Utility R I Reds were none too good a few years ago, but have now greatly improved and are a much more even ripe horsechestnut colour.

Much has been heard lately of sex linked crosses when by mating a Gold Cock to a Silver, one may distinguish the sexes at hatching the females resembling the Sire and the males the Dam. The advantage of this to commercial egg farmers is obvious. Here again is yet a further valuable asset in these two breeds. The R1 Red (Gold) cockerel mated to the Light Sussex (Silver) pullet produces sex linked progeny, the baby pullet chicks coming with buff or brown fluff and the

Poultry Breeding in Finland

By MATT! ILKKA

The development of Poultry breeding in Finland has been rather slow, but after the war, owing to a steadily increasing demand from abroad, the egg Thus in export of Finland rapidly expanded the year 1021 eggs to the value of 17 million Fin marks were exported, and the demand for high-quality Finnish eggs gave a powerful impetus to the industry with the result that many hundreds of new Poultry farms were started. At the present time the stock of birds is probably 1,500 000, and the "Finnish Poultry Breeders Association," a new organisation for the development of poultry breeding, is steadily working to promote the interests of an industry that seems particularly important in a country of small cultivators A new Association-"Muna Egg Export Society

-controls the export of eggs as well as sales in the country, and is now looking after the trade in an article for which the demand so far exceeds the supply

When it became evident that the Poultry industry could only properly develop on the basis of high yielding stock, it was decided to establish a Breed centre to which would-be poultry breeders in various parts of the country should be invited to go through a course in Poultry management, and prominent foreign types of poultry were imported, such as the White Leghorn, the grey-feathered Plymouth Rock, the Ancona, and the Brown Leghorn Simultaneously, systematic improvement of the native Finnish breeds was decided on and the work is progressing very favourably. A 'Poultry Breeders' Register" was started in 1923, and for entry it stipulated that the hens during the control year must produce (minimum) 200 eggs Hens are classified now into four classes according to type, the size of eggs laid, and the weight of these. It is further stipulated for entry to the Register that the weight of the eggs produced during one control year must reach a minimum of 11 kg. This stipulation has had satisfactory results and there is now a great number of hens whose production reached 20 kg during the last control year

It should here be mentioned that the White Leghorn to day comprises 70 per cent of all existing breeds.

The breeding of table birds is not, as yet, very highly developed The following table indicates results obtained with the respective breeds at 10 Finnish Poultry farms during the control year 1026-1027 -

Poultry Breeding in Germany

By BREED DIRECTOR MEYER, Chamber of Agriculture, Konigsberg

Poultry breeding in Germany was prior to the war more or less the occupation of fancy breeders although sporadic attempts have been made to conduct breeding on commercial and more scientific lines. Farmers and other people living in the country, of course, carried on poultry breeding but without any system. After the war however, a change came for the better, and a movement commenced in favour of improving poultry breeding so as to check the yearly increasing sums of money which went abroad in payment of imported poultry products. To day it is recognised that if poultry breeding is to pay its way and yield profit it must be conducted along lines of approved principles A number of breed Centres have been created and poultry breeding on a wholesale scale is now carried on in many parts of the country but chiefly in western and southern Germany A considerable number of breeders Associations have been formed and Pedigree Registers-or Poultry Stud Books-are being founded In East Prussia the first of these Registers was established at Konigsberg, and later on a similar institution was called into being in the Rhineland The local Chambers of Commerce have extended a sympathetic interest in these Poultry Associations and thanks to the stimulation thus accorded the poultry breeder, a number of egg laying Centrals" have been created all subsidised by the Government

So far however only one specimen of the feathered world seems to enjoy general encouragement 1 e. the Hen The White American Leghorn is fast becoming the most popular of all the fowls chiefly because this type has demonstrated its undisputed ability as an egg layer Other types of course, also enjoy encouragement such as the Italians, the Rhode Island Reds, the Plymouths, the Wyandottes, the Orpingtons, the Minorcas and the Rhineland fowls The farmer's wife seems to prefer heavy birds for crossing purposes, with a view of improving the landrace hen, and the farmers now re stock their poultry yards from generally recognised breed centres in preference to breeding their own stock

It is undoubtedly the fact that poultry breeding in Germany is now developing on quite different lines. I and it is hoped that Government assistance may take the form of employing properly trained experts in sufficient numbers to travel about to teach breeders The very efficient Experiment Stations for Poultry Breeding, of which there are several now in full operation in the country, have undoubtedly done much good and stimulated the interest among smaller and larger farmers for this particular branch of agriculture The well known Station at Halle Crollwitz has published a series of most valuable results obtained through scientific experiments and intensive work on poultry breeding

As regards other poultry breeds such as ducks and geese, conditions in Germany have not been quite so favourable for their development. The breeding of geese is chiefly in the hands of small breeders such as farmers, and there are few establishments where these birds are bred on a big scale. The same may be said concerning ducks Very many farmers are in the habit of selling their birds to the middle men in the early autumn when in more or less lean condition, and these middle men complete the fattening Prominent among the German geese types the following should be mentioned the East Prussian farm goose the Pommeranian and the Diepholzer goose all of which are splendid birds Such well-known geese types as the Emden and the Toulous are not yet bred on a commercial scale and are seldom to be seen in other places than at the regular poultry exhibitions

As regards the ducks the Pekinese type is most in vorue Lately the Aylesbury, the Orpington, and the Rouen ducks are making an appearance, but so far there are very few larger establishments for duck breeding and fattening It deserves to be mentioned that ducks are now more generally kept for egg laying purposes

The Turkey is slowly coming to the fore chiefly in East Prussia where a certain type of Landrace breed is preferred being a splendid feeder. Other types such as the Bronze and the Snow White Turkeys are lately more in demand in Germany

Poultry Breeding in Hungary

By JOHN WINKLER, General Secretary, National Association of Hungarian Poultry Breeders, Ullooi ut 24, Budapest

Geographical and climatic conditions make Hun-1 gary particularly adapted for the breeding of all sorts of poultry and Hungarians know how to breed animals and adapt their methods to the taste and the requirements in Western Europe, factors which account for the rapid development in poultry breeding as illustrated by the following figures:

The value of exports of poultry amounted to 14 million gold kronen in 1882, rose to 83 million in 1913, and leaving the war period out of consideration and taking the figures for post-war years only, the steadily increasing figures testify to sound development While in 1924 the value of exported poultry reached 44 million gold kronen, the figures for 1925 amounted to 60 millions, in 1926 to 75 millions, and in 1927 to 90 million gold kronen It should be borne in mind that as a result of the war Hungary lost two-thirds of her territory, but nevertheless her exports of poultry now exceed those of pre-war Great-Hungary. The expert of live and killed poultry, eggs, goose fat and eiderdown principally goes to the neighbouring western countries, and the export to England likewise shows a growing tendency, as may be seen from the statistics given helow

HUNGARY'S EXPORT TO GREAT BRITAIN IN POULTRY DIRING THE YEARS 1024 1025

1925 1998 n metric Value in 1000 Value in 1000 Value in 1000 ountals Gold Crowns Gold Growns Gold Crowns Merchandisc 4 630 1 963 6 144 1 489 13 438 3 744 10 342 2 933 Poultry 893 Ducks 295 70 7 912 1 978 13 798 9 803 8 870 2 152 16 476 4 961 Turkeys 4 035 561 2 559 392 1 683 283 Less

From these figures it will be seen that Hungary has a large export in turkeys to England chiefly for the Christmas trade

The poultry stock of Hungary represents large The foundation stock originated from Asia and was brought into the country by the invading Magvars a thousand years ago where it was mixed with the indigenous varieties. Later on, during the wars with Turkey, the country became the battlefield of the whole of Europe Armies from various countries marched through Hungarian territory, and it can be assumed that different kinds of poultry were brought into the country as invading colonists probably brought animals with them During the last decades the Ministry of Agriculture has striven to select and improve the poultry stock reared by the smaller farmers by distributing Pedigree stock for breeding purposes and English methods have been followed with a view of promoting a steady export trade with the United Kingdom In fact, Hungary has imported most of her breeding stock from England

The white and vellow Orometons are much in favour with the Hungarian farmer, as are also British and Emden geese, and Peking ducks As regards turkeys, the English taste has been a deciding factor. and the white Hungarian turkey, a bird of massive build, resembling the bronze turkey, with blood of the white Mexican turkey infused, furnishes excellent meat Hens are reared both for the table and egg laving The white Leghorn variety is favoured for its egg producing propensities, and good results are obtained from the Rhode Island red variety With the requirements of the table in view, the Hungarian farmers go in for two breeds, one like the Orpington and the black Langshan giving white skinned meat and the other, like the Plymouth, Rhode Island and Wyandotte, yielding yellow skinned meat There are scarcely any other varieties in Hungary as poultry breeding is tackled as a real business proposition. In the breeding of ducks the pedigree Peking duck is widely introduced, and the Indian Runner is coming in favour, being considered a good layer

Poultry breeding in Hungary, then, has many features favourable to the requirements of foreign, particularly the English markets. The many existing poultry fattening establishments and slaughter houses regularly supply these markets with dressed poultry, as in almost every Hungarian town of some standing there is a refrigerating plant and fattening estab-lishment. The plant at Budapest now enjoys European reputation All breeders of and dealers in poultry are members of the Hungarian National Association of Poultry Breeders at Budapest

British Breeds of

The Kennel Club is the recognised governing body of Dog Shows and Field Trials in this country and occupies a position in the Dog World similar to that occupied by the Jockey Club in the Racing World Under its aggis the Industry of Dog Breeding assumes its rightful position, that is an Industry carried on in a correct and proper manner Constituted over 54 years ago the Kennel Club has registered the Pedigrees of somewhere in the neighbourhood of 60 000 Dogs in the year The Club as such is a direct result of irregularities which arose concerning some of the very earliest Dog Shows that were ever held It is impossible to clearly indicate within such a short space the many and varied activities of this Club which is carried on with the sele object of preserving not only reliable and correct pedigrees but also ensuring that Shows and Field Trials are correctly conducted

The following are those breeds which besides being pre eminently British in character are at the same time among the most popular of the varying types of Dogs bred to-day in this country Many fancy breeds have been introduced into the Dog World, but it will be noticed that the following list is chiefly composed of Sporting and Gun Dogs :

THE GREYHOUND -Th s extremely well known breed is to-day probably owing to the new form of sport Greyhound Racing letter known than ever before. When references can be treed to this dogs in the B ble and novid a Works there can be no question as to the errest antiquity of the breed. Coursing has been and probably will bream one of the most select sports. It is a recorded that the first public Coursing Meeting was held at Swallham in Norfolk in the year 1776. Greybounds are not usually shown and it only seems right that this should be so their real purpose is that of coursing At the Altear Meeting near Liverpool where the famous Waterloo Ci p is competed for every year the sport is seen at its best

THE MASTIFF -There can be no doubt that the Mastiff is the oldest and noblest of our British Dogs He is a combination of grandeur and good nature courage and docility and many amazing incidents are on record of his wonderful sagacity. The average Mastiff dog stands 30 ins at the shoulder and weighs 180 lbs A bitch 2ins less and 20 lbs lighter Many Mastiffs of course exceed this height and weight He should be apricot or silver fawn or dark fawn brindle and in either case his muzzle and ears should be black. His huge skull and short deep squarely truncated muzzle with a small dark hazel eye and small ears are his most valuable assets and combine to give him that lovable expression so patent to the Mastrif

Mastiffs have been exported to all quarters of the globe and from reports received they are easily acclimatised to the rigours of Siberia or the Tropics of Ind a

The Mastiff looks his best where he is most often seen adorning the halls of country mansions with probably the pet Pom and Peke asleep between his fore-paws (H COOK Cleveland Mastiff Kennels Middlesbrough)

The SEALVHAN Trensiff as its name implies was orig nated as Sealyham in Pembrokeshire by the late Capta in Edwards This gentleman wanted a white—or mostly white—game terrier small and shorter on the leg than the Fox ferrier of those days—d age to face a fox other and badger. Many breeds are reputed to have gone to the making of this now famous little Terrier

When recognised by the Kennel Club as a pure breed of the years before the war it que kly eaught the imag nation of the dog loving public. That it has mainta ned and indeed increased its tremendous popularity is proof of its stirling character.

Shows have altered and till seem to be altering the type and though the present-day type may have lost much of the appearance that was obviously thought ideal for the early standard probably one and all will admit that to-day it is an infinitely more attractive looking and outder dog and also that it is far more standardized than in the early days and at the same time that in meally very instance it mustans not only its lovable nature but also its sparting instincts and its extreme gameness

Many Champions have now been bred but even to-day almost every breeder will think first of the International Champion Brash Bend go when asked to name the great dog of the breed not as the most faultless dog perhaps but as the dog that was most essentially all that a S-slyham should be in type and character

Notes on Dairy Equipment and Clean Milk Production.

Over-estimation of the value of a thoroughly ! clean supply of pure milk is impossible, and since milk is largely consumed by children and invalids it is obvious that anything approaching a contaminated or impure supply is a very real danger.

There has been much legislation on this subject in recent years and much attention given by medical and other authorities, and it may be stated without fear of contradiction that there is no worthy substitute for clean, fresh and rich milk. It is a very unfortunate fact that the consuming public pays insufficient regard to the quality of the milk they buy, and the conditions under which it is produced their sole concern apparently being the amount it costs

There are many grades into which milk is classified to-day, but it is imperative that the consumer should not be satisfied with any milk delivery which bears any lower designation than 'Grade A, and the conditions which publicly sold milk must fulfil to come under this category may here be enumerated. Thus Grade A' must (1) be up to standard with regard to the percentage in fat and solids not fat (2) the bacteria count must not exceed 200 000 bacteria per cubic centimeter, and must not contain any coliform bacillus in rooth cubic centimeter, and it must be sold in

sealed bottles

To produce 'Grade A' milk is not so difficult as may be at first imagined Strict care to detail and unfailing cleanliness are, however, essential Constant and strict attention to the health of the herd is of primary importance, and a periodical examination should be undertaken by the Veterinary Officer appointed by the Local Authority Well lit and roomy cow houses are a necessity, and the floor must be kept clean and free from dirt and dust, while a very thorough disinfecting at least once a week is absolutely indispensable Prior to the cows being milked their hind quarters, udders and tails must be brushed and wiped with a clean rag, and, of course, during the winter months when the cattle spend most of the day in the cow house, even stricter and more thorough attention must be given to the process of cleaning

The milker must be instructed to adopt, and maintain cleanly habits, and it is necessary that he should perform the milking operation in the manner known as 'dry" milking White overalls besides adding to a pleasant appearance of the milker and stimulating pride in his general personal appearance also contribute to make the milking and its production more attractive Pails constructed with only a small aperture are a safeguard in keeping the bacteria count low, and the milk must never be allowed to stand in the cow house in an open pail and, as soon as it is drawn from the cow, it should be removed from the stable. The first-drawn milk should always be them discarded as containing a large number of bacteria which have gained access to the milk through the always paid to the daily milkings, obviously the production of "Grade A' milk is within the reach of every Dairy Farmer Tubercular-tested "Grade A' milk, of couse, involves larger responsibility on the part of the producer and entails a larger expense, but it is fairly obvious that when the milk consuming public realise the enormous advantages accruing from a pure milk supply, nobody will be satisfied with any milk

that cannot be so classified

To grade milk on a bacterial basis is now a practical proposition, and as the Ministry of Health have recently fixed 'Bacterial Standards" for what is designated as certified 'Grade A' milk, there should be no difficulty as far as the Dairy Farmer is concerned to organise the production of such milk. The chief difficulty, however is not connected with the actual production but rather of a financial nature, inasmuch as the demand for milk of the higher-priced Grades is still very limited—as a point of fact many a Farmer who has obtained licence for graded milk is finding it very difficult, in some Districts almost impossible, to obtain a regular market for his higher-priced quality milk The time will certainly arrive when the public all over the World will demand 'Grade A milk and it is only a question of propaganda among the public This has been proved in various countries, such as the United States of America New Zealand, Tasmania and Australia and recently in Buckingham-shire where the United Dairies have adopted a Scheme for granting cash bonuses to Farmers who produce milk which can be graded above a certain standard of quality and cleanliness, the idea being the awarding of marks for the least number of bacteria present in milk and for the absence of coliform or lactose. In accordance with this scheme, 10% of the suppliers of milk who make the highest score each month receive a bonus of one penny per gallon, while the next 15% of suppliers receive a bonus of one half-penny per gallon, whereby one Farmer in every four will receive a bonus for clean milk Thus the butter-fat bonus is one tenth of a penny for every one-tenth of 1% above 3.50

The only method worth adopting for thoroughly cleansing receptacles for milk is the process of sterilising In any Dairy a steam boiler is an indispensable necessity, and surely very little trouble is incurred by arranging for a steam pipe over which the milking pails and other receptacles can be placed

To the Farmer and the Dairyman alike good deansing materials for daily use are indispensable While there are many such materials offered in the general market, care should be exercised in purchasing

Full particulars from the Makers.

The Dairy Farmer who goes in for "Grade A" mulk, production would be well advised to make use of the opportunities offering him nowadays to study modern dairy equipment at the Show Rooms of such Commercial Firms which specialise in this particular branch of machinery, while he would certainly add to his up-to-date knowledge through inspection of some well-known, well equipped Dairy Farmers cow stables and dairies

An extensive tour of dairnes, both large and small, reveals the tremendous advance and improvement that has taken place during the past few years in the methods employed in the production and distribution of milk. The glass bottle has practically superseded the antiquated and unhygienic tin container, the smallest darry running their bottle washer and their bottle filler, and among them a goodly number of automatic machines

A rotary bottle washing machine much in favour can be—and is suisally—operated by a lad, the bottles being handled at a rate of 25 a minute, a thoroughly clear and sparkling bottle being produced. While it is not claimed by this particular machine to sterilize the bottle, the result of many tests have shown that the bottles are positively sterile. Thus this machine is capable of greater efficiency than is claimed for it Dairymen using it find they can complete their bottle washing operations in a minimum of time, and risk of the milk souring owing to unclean bottles is totally eliminated. Another important feature in its favour is that it requires every little space and thus overhead charges are lowered, while the price is well within the reach of every dairyman.

It requires only two horse-power to operate, off shafting or an independent electric motor, and a boiler evaporating 100 lbs per hour when starting up, and a steam pressure of 20-30 lbs when working, so that the running costs are extremely low In operation it is simplicity itself, the bottle is placed in the conveyor cup and is immediately rinsed with cold water removing all loose milk to prevent contamination of the washing solution The bottle then passes to the washing compartment and is subsected to a high pressure solution washer at a temperature of 120-130 degrees Fahr, the solution reaching every part of the bottle inside and outside The bottle now passes into a steam box, to drain off solution, and to pre heat, prior to its passing into the hot water rinsing compartment where again it is subjected to a high pressure rinse at a temperature of 170-180 degrees Fahr Finally the bottle passes through the steaming compartment where the steam is jetted into the bottle at a pressure of 20-30 lbs per square inch The bottle is then removed from the machine and allowed to cool before filling with milk

There are many excellent bottle filling machines on the market, one automatic filling and capping machine—of which there are three types, all of a double rotary action—is widely used. The smaller of these filling machines is ideal for the small or medium sized dairy, the output of filling and capping the milk bottles ranged from 1,440 to 1,800 quarts an hour, and from 1,920 to 2,400 pints or half-pints an hour. In operation the machine is extremely simple necessary only to set the machine for the size of bottle to be filled and capped, start up, and feed the bottles into the machine, the bottle being carried under the lifting filler valve After the bottle is filled it is transferred to the capping device, and is capped automatically and finally pushed off on to a collecting table ready for packing into cases. This machine appears to be most sanitary for bottling milk. It is so designed that the milk is contained in a large bowl into which the filler valves are fitted. The bowl is most sanitary, being finished in white vitrified porcelain inside and outside, so that there is an absolutely smooth surface, easy to clean and with no seams or corners in which dirt could accumulate. The valves are most unique, perfectly sanitary, easy to dissemble and made of a sanitary metal and nickelled. The gearing is perfect, being totally enclosed and immersed in oil The housing is waterproof, there are two speeds and a neutral on the change and it is easy to run machine is easy to clean, operators can wash it by turning a hose on and afterwards steaming it. The upkeep is negligible, and running costs extremely light It requires only 1-h p to operate, either from shafting or a motor directly on the machine. It is fool proof, fills the bottles accurately without waste of milk The capping device is excellent and as there is a dry cap there is no splashing of milk when the cap is inserted into the bottle

While the production of perfectly safe, good, and suitable milk of the "Grade A' quality primary rests with the Dairy Farmer, it should not be overlooked that a certain degree of responsibility also rests with the Housewife who not inconsiderably can, and should, assist the milk producer in his efforts to cater for the general public. The Housewife who always has her family's health and interest at heart should unceasingly insist on the milk being delivered in properly cleaned well-capped glass bottles of a neat and appetising appearance, but once received in her kitchen she should personally, or through supervising her servants. exercise the necessary care without which even the very best milk may soon be contaminated and deprived of much of its nourishing value. Thus glass bottles containing milk should be kept in a cool, clean and well-arred larder until used, and it is strongly to recommend that the unsavoury habit in vogue in so many households, to place the empty, uncapped bottles in house passages, or even outside the house, exposed to dust and animals should be strictly discarded

Intensive Treatment of Grassland.

By A B. BRUCE, M A Dip Agri (Cantab)

For some years past wide publicity has been given to what its promoters term a "new" system of grass land management. Many trials of the new methods have taken place all over the country, and there can now be few farmers who are not familiar with the main principles of the system. The claim that so much can be accomplished by the use of nitrogenous manures is naturally open to criticism when it comes, as it does, from persons connected with the manufacture of fertilizers. Moreover, many have been taught to believe that the use of such fertilizers on grass land is harmful. But any doubts on this score have, we think, been set at rest by a report which has just been issued by the Ministry of Agriculture In the October number of the official Journal an article by Sir Daniel Hall and Mr. I. C Stewart appears, based upon an examination of the many trials of the new system which have recently been made. The main technical question at issue has been settled beyond all possibility of doubt Skilfully used, mirogenous fertilizers, even in quantity, do no harm to pasture land On the contrary, their use results in providing, not only more grazing, but also grass of much improved feeding quality. In the words of the Ministry's experts, "The Ministry is satisfied that the main principle of the use of successive miregenous dressings of grass land is sound, and that thereby a considerable increase of production can profitably be obtained" Of all the features of the system noticed by the reporting officers none is better calculated to appeal to the practical man than its success in lengthening the pasture period at both ends; grazing can be started earlier, generally in February, and it lasts longer. well into October. Practical men need no arguments to convince them that grass is at its highest value when the first flush comes in spring. The official report makes it clear that by the proper use of fertilizers a growth of "fresh young leafy grass" can be produced successively all through the season, thus providing stock with a herbage of high feeding value in every way equal to that of the first spring growth. The trials show that in most cases the value of the pasture can be increased at least two-fold at quite an inconsiderable expenditure, and under existing economic conditions farmers will welcome any means of adding to the profits of grass land husbandry.

Potash for Grassland.

By G A. COWIE. M.A. BSc. FIC

that it is one of the essential minerals on which the growth of clovers and the finer grasses depend The other essential mineral is phosphates, and the general evidence shows that the combined dressing of phosphates and potash is the most reliable basal treatment for poor grassland This applies to cases both where it is desired to improve grass on an extensive scale, and also grass which is to be treated in addition with nitrogenous fertilizers for the purpose of more intensive grazing.

An important effect of potash on pastures is that it often makes rough grass more palatable to stock and causes it to be eaten down much more than it would otherwise be Some striking effects of potash in producing closer grazing have been observed. It is really interesting to note how in many cases a half acre plot treated with potash in the middle of a 20 acre field is discovered by the stock and it is grazed down more closely than the rest of the field. What potash imparts to the herbage to make it more palatable is not known with certainty. It has been presumed that the addition of potash makes the grass more leafy and less stalky, and thus affords a better and more nutritious bite to the stock,

The best time for applying Potash Fertilisers to grassland is the Autumn, because the applications at this time produce the better results the following season. It takes some time for potash fertilisers to get washed down into the soil where the potash becomes | applied with it in the Autumn.

The value of Potash for grassland is based on the fact | available to the plants. There is no risk of any material loss of potash by early application, because potash is held in the soil through absorption by some of the clasconstituents. Although it is absorbed by the soil so that it is not washed out by drainage water, it is still in such a form that it can be rendered soluble by the action of the plant roots. The most economical potash fertiliser to use for grassland improvement is the 30% Potash Salts. This potash fertiliser is now being used largely for general purposes, including grassland, and it has given very satisfactory results. It is an interesting fact that where 2 cwts per acre has been compared with 4 cwts. per acre, the higher application has in some cases produced a distinctly better result. This has been obvious in cases of poor grassland, especially characterised by poor rough herbage. The higher dressing of potash appears in such cases to give the grassland a greater impetus at the start. Incidentally, it is also to be noted that although the higher dressing may mean a large initial outlay, it is equally economical owing to the longer period which it will last. It is understood that potash will only produce its maximum benefit when the soil is sufficiently equipped with phosphates in some form or other. If phosphates have not been applied in the previous year, then a dressing of Ground North African Phosphate or Basic Slag should be

Grassland Manuring.

By IOHN THOMPSON, B Sc. N D A

The precarious state of British agriculture since the war has served to place the subject of grassland in a position of unrivalled importance

In the past there has been a definite tendency to neglect all phases of grassland management and whilst some attention has been devoted to the aspects of culture, manuring and stocking, the subject as a whole has certainly never received the same careful attention as has arable practice Naturally, there-fore, the knowledge which has been accumulated up to the present time is somewhat limited and has penctrated but slowly to the average farmer

It cannot, of course, be claimed that any special treatment by manures is capable of replacing the conditions provided by careful stocking and by cultivation, and the importance of aeration and the effects of sun and light on swards must not be overlooked if fertilizers are to be expected to produce their full effect

Providing, however, reasonable attention is otherwise being given to the land there remains no question whatever as to whether or not increased yields will result from the correct application of fertilizers

Until recently, phosphates were relied upon to improve the quality of permanent pasture-mainly by stimulating wild white clovers. It is now known, however, that herbage plants are also limited in their growth by a shortage of nitrates and potash in much the same manner as are arable crops

The importance of a sufficient supply of nitrates has, during the past few years been emphasised and heavy nitrogenous dressings, along with rotational grazing, have been shown to be economic under average conditions, this treatment is, indeed being adopted at the present time by many progressive farmers in the leading agricultural countries of Europe

A feature which must always be considered if we are to maintain our high grazing standard is the production of sweet herbage which is not only readily palatable to stock, but which also assists in promoting their vigorous and healthy growth In this connection, there is little doubt that much more could be achieved by the increased use of neutral or basic fertilizers their influence on the soil being almost always ameliorative

to improve your pastures?

Here are ways in which it can help you to improve your production and reduce its cost.

Cyanamide nitrogen is steady and sustained in action and maintains its effect throughout the long period of growth

Cyanamide contains 60% of active lime which encourages the development of clovers, and maintains the grass in good condition

Cyanamide may be applied in winter without risk of drainage losses It then provides a valuable "early bite" in the Spring

CYANAMIDE (19% nitrogen, about 60% lime) is lower in price both per unit and per ton than any other nitrogenous fertilizer. Its lime costs you nothing.

The following letter reflects the experience of manu others in the use of Cyanamide for grassland,

25 8 27

Last Autumn I gave an extensive trial to Calcium Cyanamide on grassland, dressing 40 acres at the rate of I cwt per acre As a result of this dressing, together with a dressing of phosphate and potash. I was able to turn the cattle out much earlier than previously and the stock carrying capacity of the land greatly increased We were never short of keep through all the Summer and the quality of the herbage has been greatly improved, in fact the development of the clovers is most pronounced

I am so satisfied with the results given by Autumn application that I intend dressing a further acreage again this Autumn

The Sheep Stomach-worm.

By L E ROBINSON, Ph D (Cantab), A R C Sc (Lond), Chief Biologist of the Cooper Technical Bureau. London

The sheep Stomach worm (Haemonchus contortus) is one of the commonest parasites of sheep and goats and is the cause of more losses among these animals than any other internal parasite. It is often termed the Wire worm or Hair-worm, but, as the name "Wire worm has been generally applied to certain agricultural pests, to avoid confusion the former term is to be preferred

The parasite infests the fourth stomach (abomasum) of its host and subsists on the blood which it abstracts from the inner lining of the stomach wall. When present in considerable numbers the worms may be the cause of a severe debility in the host, particularly in young animals partly on account of the loss of blood and the interference with nutrition which their presence must involve, but, in all probability, their harmfulness may be attributed also to a poison or toxin which they excrete and which is absorbed by the host. Moreover, the injuries produced by the parasite afford an opportunity for the entry of harmful bacteria an instance of which is the disease known as 'Lombriz' in the Argentine Republic

FIRST SIGNS OF INFECTION -The first signs of stomach worm infection in a flock are often indefinite The infested animals, particularly the lambs, appear less lively than usual, and although the appetite is good, they do not thrive As the effects of the infection develop signs of anæmia (poerness of blood) make their appearance. The visible mucous membranes, such as the inner linings of the eyelids, the lips and the gums, become pale Finally a dropsical swelling under the lower jaw and about the throat may be generally observed. The droppings may show a normal appearance in the early stages of the disease, but in the latter stages they tend to become dark coloured and fluid, and are voided with obvious colicky" pain In untreated cases, deaths occur rapidly, especially amongst the lambs, as soon as definite symptoms have developed. At times fat lambs will die suddenly without having presented any noticeable symptoms of infection

DIAGNOSIS -The easiest and perhaps the most certain method of ascertaining whether a sheep is infected is to procure some fresh droppings from the animal These are placed in a corked or stoppered clean glass jar covering the bottom to a depth of 1—1 of an inc A dessert spoonful of water should be added if the droppings are dry, and the jar should then be put in a dark place, a cupboard for instance, for a period of four days and then examined from day to day

Il infection is present, the walls of the jar will soon show a fine whitish marbling consisting of straggling clusters of mature larvae which have hatched out from the eggs in the droppings, and have migrated up the sides of the jar II too much water is added, the droppings may become sour and the larvae will die, but sufficient moisture must be present to form a dew-like deposit on the walls of the closed jar after it | means of treatment

has been standing for a few hours at room temperature

An ordinary pocket lens is sufficiently powerful to enable the observer to assure himself that the whitish streaks and clusters are actually comprised of the minute larval worms

Description -The adult worms are small, and thread-like in form, the females measuring from $ in to It in , and the males from a in to a in in length Apart from their larger size the female worms are readily distinguished by the fact that the extremities of the body are pointed, while in the male the hinder extremity is furnished with a membranous two-lobed expansion termed the bursa or caudal pouch

The specific name "contortus meaning twisted" is derived from the appearance of the mature female worm in which the elongate opaque white tubes of the egg gland or ovary are twisted in a spiral manner round the reddish brown intestine, so as to resemble the ornamentation of a barber's pole

LIFE HISTORY -The Sheep Stomach-Worm passes through two distinct phases in its life-cycle, the one in a free living non-parasitic state, the other as an obligatory parasite within the stomach of the host It belongs, therefore, to the category of periodical

The complete life of the adult worm is passed in the parasitic phase. Pairing of the sexes takes place in the stomach of the sheep, and in due course the females lay innumerable microscopic eggs which pass through the intestine and reach the ground with the droppings of the sheep Under normal conditions, hatching of the eggs take place within 24 hours after reaching the ground, the development of the embryo worm having proceeded to a considerable extent before the egg escapes from the body of the host Larval worm which issues from the egg passes through four distinct stages which can be recognised by slight but distinct differences in form The first two larval stages are non parasitic. The third larval stage is the infective stage, and these larvae crawl up the grass blades and are readily swallowed by the sheep fourth larval stage is parasitic

TREATMENT -Many remedies are recommended for the treatment of Stomach worm infestation in sheep, and, of these, several will give more or less satisfactory results Copper sulphate (bluestone), Cooper's Powder Dip, Lysol Gasoline Picric Acid, and other substances have been, and are still advocated by different authorities, but it is now known thanks to the painstaking investigations on this subject by Dr F Veglia whilst a veterinary Research Officer to the Union Government of South Africa that none of these remedies, used singly, can be relied upon to give a successful result, when used at a strength comparable with safety to the sheep

The best possible results are obtained by dosage with tablets compounded upon the formula of Dr Veglia Such tablets afford a safe, rapid and effective

Southbrook Corriedale Stud

THE FURTHEST SOUTH CORRIEDALE STUD IN NZ

The Southbrook Corriedale Stud was founded in 1908, and is chiefly of the Lincoln Merino foundation Rams from the studs of L. White, J. H. Johnstone and J. A. Stringfellow have been used. The Southbrook Corrie dales are large framed good constitutioned shep. They are bred in the rigorous Southland chimate, and the stud is the furthest south one in New Zealand.

Note shapely carcases and dense wool on all the sheep

Southbrook Corriedale ram sire on right with four of his sons

The wool from Southbrook Cornedales is renowned. It has been practically unbeatable in open competition at Southern Shows because of its outstanding quality

At the Winter Show held in Dunedin in 1927 fleeces of Southbrook Cornedales scored the possible 100 marks Stations using rams from this stud have reported a market increase in quality of wool with an increase in price up to 6d per lb It is difficult to supply the keen demand for Southbrook Corriedales. PIGS

PIGS

We are in a position to collect dressed pigs in any district within 60 miles of London and distribute them direct to the retailer. We have a large connection amongst the best buyers in and around London, having been connected with the home and foreign pork trade for over 60 years. We are interested in the development of the Home supply of Pigs, and shall be glad to report and advise on quality and selection. Farmers who have not the conveniences for killing their pigs may send them alive, to our order, to Maiden Lane Station, or Tufnell Park No. 3 Slaughterhouse. We are also wholesale distributors of Bacon, Butter, Cheese, Lard, Eggs, Tinned Fruits and Tinned Meats. Price List on application.
